ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—Allied troops northeast of Medjez-El-Bab were forced to withdraw slightly yesterday in the face of two fierce German counterattacks, but further progress was made both in the north and the south, an Allied communique said today.

(The German communique, broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press, said a superior Allied tank formation which had succeeded in breaking into German positions northeast of Medjez-El Bab was intercepted by reserves and thrown back to its initial positions, with heavy losses.)

Fighting northeast of Medjez-El-Bab, where British troops have been threatening to break out on the Tunis plain, has been heavy and fierce, the Allied bulletin announced. The Allied forces were reported to have made some advance yesterday, when the Germans launched two strong counterattacks.

The Germans lost heavily in infantry and tanks in the first counterblow and the attack was repulsed. But the second forced the leading Allied troops to make "a slight withdrawal," the communique said.

Balanced against this reverse was the progress made by the American troops in the north, where "some important ground" was gained, and further advances by the French in the Pont du Fahs regions.

Army Call Wrecks Ashland May Day Cast, Ball Team

ASHLAND — Ashland college was still all agog today over an announcement yesterday which said 14 students, members of the May Day pageant cast and baseball team, have been ordered to report for army service May 11.

The men, all members of the enlisted reserve corps, received their orders to report for active duty just four days before the annual May day festivities.

They include three members of the baseball squad, Vince Barr, veteran second baseman; Preston Burgraf, catcher, and Robert Semple, third baseman.

Two authors of the May Day pageant were called, Jack Saunders, Youngstown, and Glenn Haller, Ashland, who with James Puglisi wrote the play and were directing it.

Joseph Denbow, principal in the production, "Arsenic and Old Lace," is included.

Others include Oliver Neely, Max Clark, Frank Joseph, Rex Martin, Marshall Smith, all of Ashland; Wayne Aldrich, Richard Anter and John Howells.

Just how the college is going to work out this difficulty is something still unanswered today.

PREMIER QUITS

North Ireland Chief Resigns, Brooke Favored as Successor.

BELFAST —(U.P.)— Prime Minister J. M. Andrews resigned today admidst reports of party dissatisfaction with his leadership in Northern Ireland.

Sir Basil, minister of commerce in the Andrews government, was expected to be asked to form a new cabinet. Brooke, a veteran of the first world war, has been a member of the Northern Ireland parliament since 1929.

FDR Weighs Peace Time Army Service

Ends Tour of 20 States With Idea of Year's Training for Youths.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt returned today from a 17-day war inspection trip prepared to explore the possibility of having every young American contribute a year of service to the government in peace, as well as in war.

The chief executive was greatly impressed by the physical and mental improvement of the country he saw during his 7,652-mile trip and he attributed this to the war training programs in industry and the armed services. So he now intends to examine the question of whether this training should be continued after the emergency.

The president went into 20 states, as far west as Colorado, and into Mexico for a meeting with President Avila Camacho during his journey which began on April 13 and ended today. He visited 12 army posts, a marine training base, a naval air station and four war plants. He met and talked with the governors of 12 states and numerous industrial officials.

He saw the nation's growing army being trained under actual fire with live ammunition. He saw combat planes and bullets for them coming from the production lines.

And all put together, the president found evidence that the nation's total war effort has improved greatly since his coast-to-coast trip last fall.

The first half of the new trip was made public after the president swung down through the southeast into Texas and on to Mexico.

The final phase began at Corpus Christi, Tex., where he bade Av-

SWEDEN RAIDED

Unidentified Plane Bombs Island Near Navy Base.

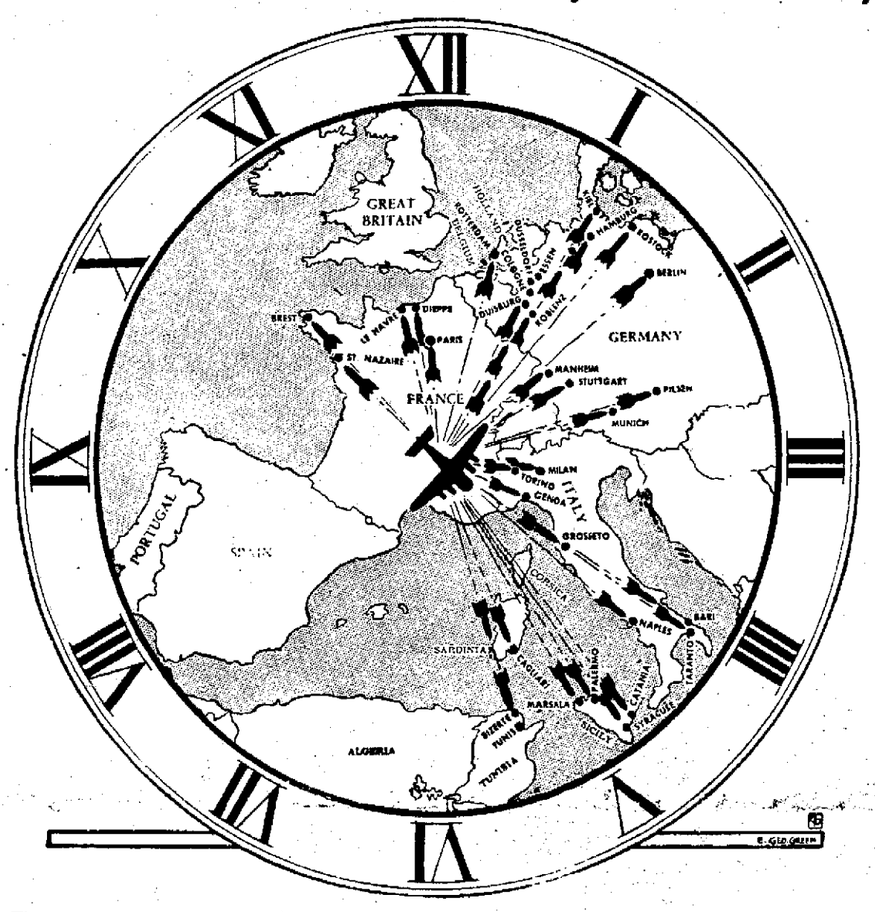
STOCKHOLM —(AP)— The foreign office announced today that three bombs from an unidentified plane fell at 1 a. m. on the island of Verkoen outside the Swedish naval base at Karlskrona.

First report said there were no damage or casualties.

The anti-aircraft defense command began an investigation of the bomb fragments in an effort to determine the nationality of the plane. A communique said the plane came from the east, dropped a parachute flare and then dropped the bombs.

(Karlskrona lies on the Baltic 290 miles by rail south southwest of Stockholm. It had been the headquarters of the Swedish navy since 1680. The city has a navy arsenal and hospital. Its dry docks are cut out of solid granite.)

Hour After Hour, Day After Day!



The map face of this clock dial gives a graphic idea of the effectiveness and wide range of the around-the-clock bombings to which the American, British and Russian air forces are subjecting the war industry of Germany and her vassal states. With the Allies striking from the skies at different targets daily, the hard-pressed Luftwaffe can put up, at best, only a hasty defense.

START TORNADO REPAIR TASKS

Northern Richland Farmers Begin Plans To Rebuild Storm-Struck Structures.

Northern Richland county rural residents today began the task of repairing damage wrought by Tuesday night's tornado with heaviest loss of the area reported to rural homes. The Red Cross disaster preparedness committee yesterday estimated damage to houses alone would total close to $25,000.

Other counties of northeastern and central Ohio, which counted three dead and hundreds injured, set their total property loss at about $5,000,000 with Cleveland and Akron suffering heaviest losses. Emergency agencies and civilian defense workers moved into these areas to help authorities maintain order and relieve suffering.

Mansfield agencies had no reports of severe deprivations or losses making relief assistance necessary, Red Cross attaches reported. Miss Miriam Hooper, Red Cross executive secretary, Robert Black, chairman of the disaster preparedness committee, and C. C. Beelman salvage chairman, said only six persons in the area reported property losses to them,

Laval Confers With Fuehrer, Bern Reports.

BERN, Switzerland — (AP) — Pierre Laval, French chief of government, was reported today by sources with Axis connections to be conferring with Adolf Hitler.

SUIT DISMISSED

Government Anti-Trust Action Against Petrillo Dropped.

CHICAGO—(AP)— At government request, the second anti-trust suit against James C. Petrillo and his American Federation of Musicians (AFL) was dismissed in federal court yesterday, paving the way for a possible new action by the government in its fight to break the union's ban on making musical recordings for public purposes.

The suit was dismissed by Judge John P. Barnes, who last Oct. 12 ruled in favor of the union in refusing a government request for an injunction to restrain Petrillo from further enforcement of his order of last Aug. 1 forbidding union members from making recordings and transcriptions for the radio and juke boxes. He ruled the matter essentially was a labor dispute.

In the second suit, however, the government charged Petrillo's ban would destroy approximately 550 independent radio stations relying on recordings for most of their programs. Assistant U. S. Attorney Daniel B. Britt said the government had until 1945 to prosecute in case of this kind.

WAR LOANS HIT SEVEN MILLIONS

Richland Drive Shoots Past $6,649,000 Goal; 2 Days, $627,000 To Spare.

It's over the top!

Richland county's second War Loan drive today-two days before the end of the drive—went more than $627,000 past the $6,649,000 goal for a total of $7,276,219.70.

And while this was going on in Mansfield, Undersecretary of the Treasury Daniel W. Bell in Washington announced that the 13 billion dollar national drive will be oversubscribed by at least $2,500,000,000.

Large subscriptions from banks and industrial plants in Mansfield and Shelby brought in $1,283,123.75 yesterday to push the drive over the finish line. Banks purchased $340,000 in bonds yesterday when bidding was reopened to them. More than $943,000 was subscribed by the industrial plants, individuals and other non-bank investors.

"The drive was bound to go over the goal for everybody in the county has been helping," H. G. Brunner, co-chairman of the drive said today as he an-

UNION, N. Under the heading "deferred and why," lists have been placed in postoffices at Slavin's order.

Victory Growers To Be Awarded Official Sign.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio's Victory gardeners will receive a sort of medal of honor for their part in the war effort.

The Ohio Victory Garden Council announced it had selected an official sign, 13 x 10 inches, with a red, white and blue shield and this inscription: "Victory garden. I will help win the war."

CATLETT WINS ANTI-NUMBERS BILL VICTORY

Richland Lawmaker Steers Once-Defeated Measure To Passage By House.

Representative John L. Catlett of Mansfield today had steered an anti-numbers racket measure to victory by a vote of 78 to 31 in the Ohio house of representatives after appealing to fellow legislators to "give conscientious law enforcement officials a law with teeth in it so they can do a good job."

The bill, which puts a stiff penalty on violators of the anti-numbers law, was defeated last week by eight votes in the house. Catlett argued in its behalf then, and members of the legislature admitted later that public sentiment favored the measure. The bill now goes to the senate.

Catlett told house members yesterday that "thousands of dollars taken in this racket go to a money-in-politics pool to corrupt local officials.

"The operators build fine homes and our youth get the impression that the pathway to money and success is by illegal operations," he said.

Catlett said that in making this statement he was not referring to his own district in particular but said he understood such practices existed in Ohio.

The Richland county representative added that a numbers house operator in Mansfield told him he would have to quit business if the bill becomes a law."

As approved by the house, the measure would lower imprisonment for sale of lottery tickets from six months to 90 days but impose a $500 to $1,000 fine or one to seven years imprisonment in the penitentiary for second convictions in sale of numbers tickets.

Similar sentences could be imposed against persons convicted a second time for establishment or participation in a numbers game.

In Mansfield, Police Chief Meade K. Bates said the bill afforded a means of getting at the "big operators" in the numbers game.

"Now, the numbers game is like bootlegging," he said. "When numbers are bought on the sly, the seller becomes an operator.

PLAN DEMANDS

CIO Leaders Set To Ask Wage Adjustments, Rip Controls.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The executive board of the Congress of Industrial Organizations will meet May 14 in Cleveland to demand wage adjustments to meet increased living costs unless all prices are rolled back to Sept. 15, 1942 levels.

CIO President Philip Murray, in announcing the extraordinary meeting accused Economic Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes, Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown and Food Administrator Chester C. Davis of "complete failure" to carry out President Roosevelt's hold-the-line order on wages and prices.

Congress was charged with demonstrating "complete disregard" for the war effort by its rejection of Mr. Roosevelt's proposal for incentive payments to farmers, its denial of appropriations to the Farm Security Administration and its repeal of the $25,000 net salary limit.

Threatens to Set Up Martial Law at Mines

President Sends Telegram to Lewis Asserting He Will Use Powers as Commander-In-Chief to End Strike Against Government.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK—(INS)—John L. Lewis had "no comment" today when told that President Roosevelt has ordered his striking United Mine Workers Union members back into the nation's soft coal pits by Saturday morning.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt today ordered striking members of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers Union to end their "strike against the U. S. government" by Saturday at 10 a. m. or face a declaration of martial law and use of troops.

Mr. Roosevelt, in telegrams to Lewis and Thomas Kennedy, UMW secretary, said that he was making a friendly appeal to miners now on strike to get back into the coal pits. But the fact that he set a 10 o'clock Saturday morning deadline made the appeal tantamount to a flat ultimatum.

If the miners reject the appeal, the president warned:

"I shall use all the power vested in me as president and as commander in chief of the army and navy to protect the national interest and to prevent further interference with the successful prosecution of the war."

Declaring that "the enemy will not wait while strikes and stoppages run their course," the chief executive acted less than 24 hours after the War Labor Board sent the case to the White House. He also met the showdown with Lewis squarely—less than two hours after he had returned from a 17-day tour of munition plants throughout the country.

Mr. Roosevelt's telegram not only covered the present "silent strikes" in the coal industry which have resulted in more than 61,000 miners quitting work, but he dated the ultimatum so that it would cover any general strike that may be allowed to occur at the Friday zero deadline.

Indicating that he would insist that the miners submit their case to the war labor board for final determination, Mr. Roosevelt severely indicted the work stoppages.

"These are not mere strikes against employes of this industry to enforce collective bargaining demands," the president stated. "They are strikes against the

TRANSIT STRIKE HITS CLEVELAND

War Industry Crippled as All Street Car, Bus Service Comes To Stop.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — A total transit strike today crippled Cleveland's war industry and Mayor Frank J. Lausche asked motorists to "travel the main streets" and pick up pedestrians, as 4,000 motormen, conductors, motor bus drivers and maintenance men refused to work in protest over wage demands.

Thomas F. Meaney, president of the AFL-Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes union, called the strike. His order left more than 100,000 war workers stranded as the entire street car and bus service came to a standstill at midnight.

Mayor Lausche met with Acting Regional WLB Director Lewis M. Gill, City Law Director Thomas Burke, Federal Conciliator Paul Williams and Meaney in an attempt to reach a temporary agreement under which cars and buses could move workers to their jobs.

After a lengthy conference, Meaney left the meeting and told newsmen he would go to the cast-

BANS FIGHT

Stimson Says Louis Won't Meet Conn This Summer.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary of War Stimson said today there would be no heavyweight championship fight this summer between Sgt. Joe Louis and Corp. Billy Conn.

Asked as his press conference about reports that war department was making arrangements for such a fight with purchase of war bonds as the price of admission, the secretary replied: "I think I can assure you that the war department will not sponsor or approve a Louis-Conn fight this summer."

APPROVES MOVE

McGregor, In City, Supports FDR Mine Ultimatum.

Congressman J. Harry McGregor, visiting in Mansfield today on a quick tour of the 17th Ohio congressional district, which he represents, this afternoon endorsed President Roosevelt's action in serving an ultimatum on the United Mine Workers to return to work by 10 a. m. Saturday or face the prospect of martial law.

"I firmly believe," said Congressman McGregor, "that the rank and file of all organizations want to work to help win the war.

"No individual and no group is higher than 130,000,000 people."

McGregor arrived here last night and was to leave this afternoon for Newark, to participate in a war bond rally this evening.

RUNS OVER BOY

Truck Crushes Cardboard Box; Boy's Inside.

PASSIAC, N. J.—(AP)—A transport truck ran over a cardboard carton yesterday, and the driver later found in it, fatally crushed, a five-year-old boy.

Detectives John Van Hoven and Edward Smith quoted the driver as saying that after his vehicle ran over the apparently-empty box in the road, he heard a scream. He returned and found the child inside.

AT SEA WITH SHANGRI-LA TASK FORCE—Another cheering note is the weather. The sky is gray and stormy, and it is raining. The rolling and pitching of the ship is bothersome, but many a hand aboard is glad: Glad because the murky weather is a curtain to screen our large task force from enemy observation. We hope that this natural protection will continue until we have launched our bombing planes.

This afternoon there were moving pictures in the crew's quarters. The picture was "The Wizard of Oz," and everyone enjoyed it—but such colorful fantasy seemed to strike a bizarre note on this ship of war in the Pacific, amidst all these tense men bound on a mission of death.

Everyone seems to be growing more tense by the hour now, and time accordingly has slowed considerably. The men aboard are wearing out whatever literature is available. The magazines on the rack in the officers' wardroom, already well worn, have aged still more, and the ship's little library reports a heavy demand.

Despite arduous watches and other duties, leisure seems to be weighing heavily on all hands. The misty weather is

Mansfield, Nation to Offer Big 'Music Week' Programs

While Mansfield was pushing ahead its plans for the city's biggest observance of Music Week, plans were going ahead nationally today to make this year's observance one of the most elaborate ever.

The observance opens next Sunday and while Mansfield will present a full week's program, the national observance will bring additional features for music lovers.

The National Federation of Music clubs will sponsor a "Festival of the Air" with Mrs. Guy Patterson Gannett, national president of the national federation, opening the festival Sunday afternoon when the broadcasts on all four major networks at 12:30 p. m.

Among the numerous highlights of the week is the world premiere of "Johnny Appleseed," written by Eunice Lea Kettering, head of the music department of Ashland college. Miss Kettering's composition will be presented May 3 either from 3:30 to 4:30 p. m., or from 11:30 to 12 midnight by the Schola Cantorum, a na-

CAMPFIRE CORNER

By JACK WELCH

Fresh From a Blue Ridge Stream

HAVING recommended a fairly short 8 or 8½ foot rather stiff rod with quick action tip as an all around fly casting implement I'm again going counter to some expert opinion and suggest that instead of tieing leader to line you can and leave the leader attached throughout the fishing season unless it's damaged in some way rather than remove it every time you go fishing The advantage of the splice is that the point of union between leader and line will easily slide through the tip top and guides thus enabling you to cast more efficiently with a longer leader than you otherwise could use

If you invest in a double tapered line cut eight or 10 feet off the leader end This puts weight directly behind the fly and brings out the action of the rod helping you to cast farther and more accurately

A torpedo head taper is built with these ideas in mind and no lopping off is necessary A level line however serves the purpose very well and you can obtain a good one for less than you would have to pay for a mediocre tapered line Next to the rod itself the line is the most important item of equipment in fly fishing perhaps it should be rated quite on a par with the rod A good line properly cared for will last a lifetime while after a poor one is used a while it is a constant source of annoyance even if given every attention

If you wish to economize on anything do so on the reel which in fly fishing is used only to hold the line and plays a very minor role in catching the fish Many tackle dealers some of them conscientiously will advise the beginner to purchase an automatic reel but usually a single action side winder will prove more satisfactory Then the embryo fly fisherman can devote his attention to casting rather than to manipulation of a gadget that is of relatively small importance anyway

This is no knock at properly adjusted automatics, since they have certain advantages over the manual type

The point is learning to get that fly out to the predetermined spot and landing it there lightly is the primary objective If you use an automatic the tension should not be so strong that the line rushed into a pell mell when the lever is pressed Should it work that way take it back to the dealer and insist that it be adjusted A rod tip can be snapped off if the line loops around it and is given a sudden jerk by a superpower automatic

Use metal eyed flies in preference to the snelled variety and remember that small ones usually produce better results than the big gaudy fellows that look so appealing in the catalogs except perhaps at times during the spring and high water seasons The streamers which when immersed are supposed to look like minnows should of course be larger than dry flies Often their efficiency is stepped up for trout panfish and bass fishing alike by attaching a small spinner in front of them

While some dry fly fishing fanatics indulge in a lot of pseudo scientific flights of fancy relative to flies of various shapes sizes and colors at least they impress the layman that way - the fact remains that for one reason or another certain flies catch fish at certain times when others are ignored and the more skilled of the fanatics seem able to choose the proper lure when the beginner and the scoffer cannot

There's no doubt a direct relation between the nature of the fly hatch and the sort of lure that will prove a killer The degree to which a fish reacts to various colors has been argued since artificials were invented

On the one extreme it has been stated that all denizens of the depths are totally color blind while proponents of the right color theory may insist that a trout can distinguish between violet and indigo or yellow and orange The middle of the road premise that fish are influenced to some extent at least by various color schemes seems to be pretty well borne out by experience

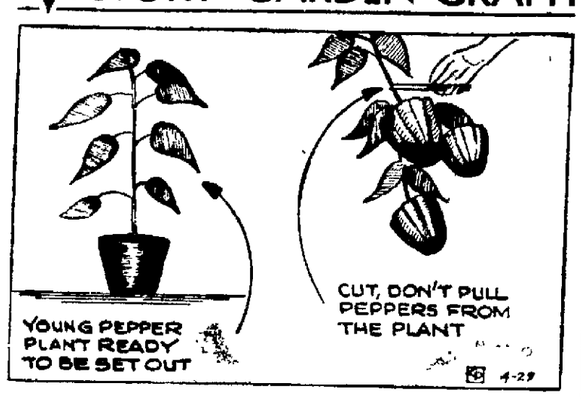
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Growing Peppers In the Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Ass'n.

Peppers will prove easy to grow in the Victory garden because they will do well in almost any soil except one that is too rich, and the plants are comparatively free of attacks by insects. As peppers are distinctly a warmth-loving plant, they should not be set out until there is no longer any danger of even an unexpectedly late frost.

Pepper plants can be set 15 to 18 inches apart in the row. If there is to be more than one row of plants space the rows 2 or 2½ feet apart.

Few home gardeners grow their own pepper plants from seed since young pepper plants can always be purchased at the proper time for setting them out, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. It is important that peppers be cultivated frequently (shallow cultivation is best) not only to keep down the weeds but also to keep the soil about the plants in a loose, friable condition. A well cultivated soil helps to conserve moisture and pepper plants require a continuous supply of moisture for their proper development.

When gathering the fruits of a pepper plant do not pull them from the plant, but cut them off with a sharp knife or scissors, as illustrated, and leave at least one inch of stem.

When the first fruits of the pepper plant are ready for harvest cultivation should be stopped, although the weeds should be kept down by hand pulling.

T-B SUSPECTS GET TREATMENT

BUCYRUS — Twenty suspicious cases of tuberculosis were given flourescent and x-ray examinations at the diagnostic clinic held at City hospital Wednesday afternoon.

The clinic, the first of a series to be financed by funds raised in the tuberculosis Christmas seal sale, was conducted by Dr. Baughman of the staff of Jane Case Tuberculosis hospital at Delaware.

Clinics will be scheduled for every two months, Miss Estella Pfleiderer, city health nurse, who arranged the examinations, announced.

SEES CHANCE OF GAS ATTACK ON ALL OF OHIO

Defense Director Points Out $3,000,000 In Equipment Widely Distributed.

(Editor's Note: In this, the last of three articles, Director Ralph H. Stone of the Ohio Defense Council warns that enemy raiders could shower poison gas on Ohio.)

By RALPH H. STONE
Director, Ohio Council of Defense
(Written for The Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Ohio is considered a potential target area for enemy raiders and Washington has allocated to the state emergency disaster equipment valued at more than $3,000,000.

Thirty-four cities and towns already have received a proportionate share of this equipment; it will be operated by trained civilian volunteers in the event of an emergency.

Municipalities which benefitted by the distribution are considered first-priority target areas. The seriousness of the situation may be seen in the fact that the Office of Civilian Defense and war department distributed the equipment to cities and towns in all sections of the state — no district was singled out for special attention. In other words Washington believes the entire state is open to attack.

Equipment allocated to cities includes:

Some 238,000 feet of two and one-half inch hose; 11,560 steel helmets; 67,040 gas masks; 6,665 folding cots; 1,106 feet of four-inch suction hose; 297 trailer pumps; 574 roof ladders; 116,800 feet of one and one-half inch hose; 20 extension ladders; 1,695 firemen's coats; 71,134 pump tank extensions; 92 front mount pumps and 206 skid mount pump.

There are 148 other cities, towns and townships either designated for equipment or eligible to receive it.

The Ohio State Council of Defense, during the past year and a half, has installed the machinery for a far-reaching civilian and industrial protection program. Equipment issued to the state by the federal government will further assist civilians in protecting themselves and their homes in the event of air raids and sabotage.

The need for civilian defense becomes apparent when it is realized that our fighting men overseas will receive weapons and food only if we maintain a strong home front. Armies have been defeated on the battle field for lack of support from persons remaining at home.

I also want to warn that possible enemy bombing attacks may be accompanied by poison gas.

Col. A. Gibson, chief of the inspection section of the Office of Civilian Defense, predicted a few days ago that Axis war lords would employ gas when they believe the time is opportune. The OCD official said that poison gas could play havoc with America's war production inasmuch as industry would be compelled to shut down temporarily to allow for decontamination.

Several thousand Ohioans have been trained to identify the various types of poison gas. A majority of local defense councils have trained decontamination crews, ready to go to work the moment the first gas bomb is dropped.

In conclusion, I say that Ohio residents must remember four facts in the days that are immediately ahead:

1. An endeavor to bomb the United States in all probability will be made this spring or summer. Although Atlantic and Pacific coastal areas have been threatened by the Axis, Ohio cities and towns are much closer in air line miles to Norway from which a bombing foray probably would be launched.

2. Ohio is a broad, inviting target area, with more war production plants probably than any other state.

3. No section of the state is immune. This includes rural sectors far removed from cities and towns. The enemy has burned wheat fields and destroyed crops of Allied nations abroad. There is reason to believe he will endeavor to do the same thing here.

4. Ohio, as an important industrial and agricultural state, faces the danger of poison gas attacks.

I repeat that civilian defense is good insurance. Even though we escape a bombing, we will know at least that we had the foresight to prepare for any eventuality.

ACQUITTED IN ASSAULT CASE

Jury Absolves Savannah School Superintendent of Charge.

ASHLAND—Lewin Vermillion, Savannah school superintendent, stood acquitted today of charges of assault and battery brought by parents of a pupil whom he was charged with having slapped in the face. A jury of six men and six women gave a verdict of not guilty 22 minutes after being sent to the jury room.

As final defense witness, Vermillion had taken the stand in his own defense. He testified that Roy Gorton, freshman pupil, had refused three days in a row to go to the detention hall at the noon hour as punishment for misconduct and that the boy's teacher had notified Vermillion of the disobedience on the third day.

Vermillion stated that after he had ordered the boy to the detention hall, Roy had slammed his dinner bucket shut and asserted "I don't have to go. I can go home." It was then, Vermillion stated, that he slapped the boy, shook him and took him to his office to talk to him on the subject of obedience.

According to Vermillion's testimony, the boy's step-father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vanosdall, had come to his home and told him they had told the boy to come home if any problems arose which he didn't think were right.

"It was a matter of whether he was going to run me or I was going to run him," he said. He stated he had administered corporal punishment to other pupils during his superintendency and the county schools superintendent, V. B. Moffett, testified on the stand that he advised teachers to administer corporal punishment but not excessively.

DEATH CLAIMS RED HAW GIRL

ASHLAND — Evelyn Earline Austen, 14, Polk high school freshman, died Tuesday at Samaritan hospital of an illness which followed an operation. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Austen of Red Haw, she attended the Red Haw Evangelical church.

Besides her parents, Miss Austen is survived by three brothers, Dale in the U. S. Army, Hugh of Wycliffe, and a twin brother, Stanley, at home; one sister, Jeanette, at home, and her grandparents, Harvey Austen of Red Haw, Mrs. Albert Myers of Red Haw, and Mrs. Thomas Hastings of near Ashland.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Red Haw Evangelical church Friday at 3 p. m. in charge of Rev. Albert C. Mathias. Burial will be in Red Haw cemetery.

MAYOR FINES 2 SHELBY DRIVERS

SHELBY — Two motorists were found guilty of reckless driving by Mayor W. R. Morris Wednesday afternoon after they had filed charges against each other following a traffic accident earlier this week.

Charles Bucher of Shelby and John Peiffer, R. D. 1, Plymouth, were the drivers of cars involved in an accident at the east side square.

Mayor Morris found Peiffer guilty of cutting the corner too short and Bucher of driving at excessive speed. Both were fined $1 by Mayor Morris and had their costs suspended.

UNEVEN TRENDS DISPLAYED BY STOCK LEADERS

Bank Clearings Show Slight Drop From Week Before, Still Top 1942.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Slightly uneven trends were displayed by leading stocks in today's early market proceedings.

Up fractions at a fairly active opening were Kennecott, Johns-Manville, Montgomery Ward, Texas Co., and United Aircraft. Small declines were posted for American Telephone, Bethlehem, Chesapeake & Ohio, International Nickel and Standard Brands.

Boardrooms scanned the bank clearings compilation of Dun & Bradstreet which disclosed that these transactions in 23 cities for the week ended Wednesday, while under the preceding week's peak, exceeded the like 1942 period by 28.4 per cent. Substantial year-to-year increases were shown by Denver, Dallas, Houston, Seattle, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Kansas City.

THEATERS

Hobby Crowns on Him.

What started as a hobby has developed into a serious wartime project for Walter Huston, currently featured by Warner Brothers in "Edge of Darkness," now at the Ohio. Huston recently signed a deal to triple his ranch holdings in Porterville to raise beef for the government. He now has almost 4,000 acres of grazing land, and is already set to handle 2,500 head of cattle. Starred in "Edge of Darkness" are Errol Flynn, Ann Sheridan and Huston. The film deals with the Norwegian underground and its fight against the Nazi invader.

Comedy-Romance.

Acquanetta, dreamy-eyed glamor girl, has a featured role in Universal's comedy-romance, "Rhythm of the Islands," now playing at the Madison. Allan Jones and Jane Frazee are co-starred in the new music filled picture. Andy Devine, Mary Wickes, and Ernest Truex have prominent roles. Appearing in the film as a native South island girl, Acquanetta is described as the most photographically perfect young lady ever to don a sarong. Co-attraction at the Madison stars George Sanders and Gail Patrick in "Quiet Please, Murder."

Girl Orchestra.

Seventy-five musicians had an audience that included Tommy Dorsey, Bob Crosby, Duke Ellington and other musical lights, when they played symphonies on a sound stage at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. They were chosen from various orchestras throughout Southern California, and were headed by Ann Sothern, who played violinist and impresario in "Three Hearts for Julia," playing at the Ritz. The feminine orchestra figures in three important highlights in the story of tangled loves and tangled talents, in which Miss Sothern and Melvyn Douglas head the cast. Co-attraction is "Street of Chance," featuring Burgess Meredith and Claire Trevor.

Detective Story.

Basil Rathbone is seen as Sherlock Holmes and Nigel Bruce as Doctor Watson in the Park's top attraction, "Sherlock Holmes and the Weapon." Co-attraction features The Three Mesquiteers in "Thundering Trails."

G. W. M'FARLAND FORMER COUNTY COMMISSIONER DIES AT AGE 80

George W. McFarland, 80, Madison township trustee and former Richland county commissioner, died early today at General hospital. He had been ill for a month and entered the hospital more than a week ago. He lived on State Route 39 northwest of the city.

A leader in Republican political circles in the county for a number of years, Mr. McFarland was county commissioner from 1929 to 1933. He had been trustee for the past five years.

He was born Aug. 15, 1862, near Little Washington and passed his entire life in Richland county. As a young man he was a country school teacher and later was a rural mail carrier out of the Mansfield postoffice.

He was a member of the First Christian church and the Modern Woodmen of America, his lodge membership extending over a period of more than 50 years.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be conducted Saturday at 2 p. m. with Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger, pastor of the First Christian church, officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Nancy E. McFarland; a son, W. S. McFarland, and a daughter, Miss Lila McFarland, both of Mansfield; four grandchildren, and three sister, Miss Ella McFarland, Long Beach, Calif.; Mrs. Frank Taylor, Mansfield, and Mrs. Lillie Pollock of Lexington.

SAILOR HELD

Questioned In Slaying of Youth On Coal Boat.

MILWAUKEE —(INS)— George H. Sagel, 19, of Chicago, was held at coast guard barracks in Milwaukee today after he was quoted as admitted fatally shooting John F. Hopperton, 16, of Cleveland aboard the O. S. MacFarland, a coal boat docked at Port Washington, Wis.

Sagel told Sheriff R. G. Schaefer of Port Washington that he and Hopperton challenged each other in a friendly manner and that he aimed his revolver at the Cleveland youth and pulled the trigger, thinking the hammer "was coming down on an empty chamber."

ORDERS MINERS BACK TO PITS BY SATURDAY

President Tells Lewis He'll Declare Martial Law If Men Fail To Comply.

United States government itself."

Mr. Roosevelt pointed out that the strikes were a "clear violation" of labor's no-strike pledge. Then, intimating that he would use troops against strikers just as American soldiers are used against the enemy on the world's battlefronts, the chief executive said:

"The continuance and spread of the strikes would have the same effect on the course of the war as a crippling defeat in the field."

The president insisted that there could be no such strikes during wartime.

"The strikes are a direct interference with prosecution of the war," he maintained. "They challenge the governmental machinery that has been set up for the orderly and peaceful settlement of all labor disputes.

"They challenge the power of the government to carry on the war."

Mr. Roosevelt, at another point in his announcement emphasized:

"The production of coal must continue. Without coal our war industries cannot produce tanks, guns, and ammunition for our armed forces without these weapons, our sailors on the high seas and our armies in the field will be helpless against our enemies."

As was expected, Mr. Roosevelt stressed the fact that many of the miners had sons and brothers in the armed forces. This is the way he put it:

"I am sure that the men who work in the coal mines, whose sons and brothers are in the armed forces, do not want to retard the war effort to which they have contributed so loyally and in which they with all other Americans have so much at stake."

The War Labor board had stressed the same theme when it sent the strike ridden wage controversy between Lewis and the coal operators to the president at 4:30 p. m. yesterday. As a result of the WLB action, the president moved speedily today.

In addressing his back-to-work appeal to the miners, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"Not as president—not as commander in chief — but as the friend of the men who work in the coal mines, I appeal to them to resume work immediately and submit their case to the National War Labor board for final determination.

"I have confidence in the patriotism of the miners. I am sure that when they realize the effect that stopping work at this time will have upon our boys at the front, they will return to their jobs."

However, the appeal was virtually turned into an ultimatum when the president concluded:

The enemy will not wait while strikes and stoppages run their course. Therefore, if work at the mines is not resumed by 10 o'clock Saturday morning, I shall use all the power vested in me as president and as commander of the army and navy to protect the national interest and to prevent further interference with successful prosecution of the war."

The next move in the bitter controversy, in which Lewis is demanding a $2 a day wage increase for his miners, is up to the UMW chieftain.

President Roosevelt used the first part of his telegram to recount how the hard-fisted Lewis had consistently defied the war labor board. The president took cognizance of protests of miners that costs of living have soared in mining towns because of violations of OPA regulations. He said that he had directed the OPA to make an immediate investigation of the facts and whenever a violation of the law is disclosed by that investigation to see that the violators of the law are prosecuted."

Ohio Miners Join Wave of Walkouts

COLUMBUS — (UP) — Approximately 1,100 miners in the eastern Ohio coal fields in two mines owned by the Hanna Coal company today joined the growing wave of walkouts.

At the Duglen mine near Cadiz 400 members of the United Mine Workers failed to report for work on two shifts. At the Willow Grove mine 738 miners failed to enter the pits.

Harlan County Mine Paralysis Near

HARLAN, Ky. — (INS) — Complete paralysis of soft coal mining in the Harlan county area loomed today as ten more mines were closed by strikers in advance of the expiration of the miners' contract.

The latest ten mines to close, which employ more than 2,000 men, increased the number of striking miners to more than 6,000.

Although officials of the United Mine Workers union urged their members to stay at work until tomorrow's deadline, only a few mines in the immediate area continued to operate.

Fewer Than 7,000 On Job In Alabama Mines

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — (INS) — Fewer than 7,000 miners continued to work in Alabama pits today as strikes in advance of the contract expiration deadline Friday made an estimated 16,000 men idle.

Those mines still operating consisted mostly of smaller commercial pits the Alabama Mining Institute announced.

With the closing of 13 more mines yesterday, 37 units have been forced to halt operations since the walkouts began four days ago.

Captive Steel Mines Feel Strike Pinch

PITTSBURGH — (UP) — Production of coal and coke needed to keep steel mills operating fell off steadily in the western Pennsylvania bituminous fields today as more men deserted the mines in support of their demands for higher wages.

Approximately 36,000 miners in 73 captive and commercial pits were involved in the walkouts.

The strikes hit hard the "captive" operations of six big steel companies who depend upon output of the mines to maintain capacity production of war materials.

All seven mines of Republic Steel corporation and all four pits of Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. were down. Eight mines of the H. C. Frick Coke company, U. S. Steel subsidiary, were out; three mines of Bethlehem Steel Corp. were closed; a big mine of Crucible Steel company was out, and a mine of the Wheeling Steel Corp., also was down.

The report by the Svenska Dagbladet says Mannerheim went to the neutral republic to recuperate from a recent illness and is expected to return soon to Finland.

CATLETT WINS ANTI-NUMBERS BILL VICTORY

Richland Lawmaker Steers Once-Defeated Measure To Passage By House.

and it's hard to get him for a stiff penalty or to get at the head operator."

The police chief said enactment of the measure into law would make it possible "to clean up the numbers games."

Catlett moved last week that the previous house vote on the bill be considered at yesterday's session and won his point only after a motion by Representatives John Buckley, Mahoning county Democrat, was voted down.

Buckley would have made the bill a special order of business next Wednesday so that corrections could be made in the bill. Catlett answered that "there is ample time to consider the measure now, while next week our time will be taken by measures which must be noted on before adjournment."

He added that postponement would impair the bill's chances of passage, as the senate might not be able to act on it before adjournment. Buckley's motion garnered 61 votes to only 45 against it, but it failed to carry because a special order of business motion must be carried by a two-thirds vote.

Rep. William Bacon (R-Mahoning) then instituted action which resulted in striking from the bill an amendment which heretofore made the mere possession of a numbers slip an offense punishable by a maximum of three months imprisonment.

"This bill hits at only one racket: the numbers racket," said Catlett. "It does not strike at churches or fraternal organizations which promote bingo games or raffles.

"When the present law was passed, the numbers racket was small business, but now it is a big business and we'll have to put teeth in the law to stamp it out. A small fine will not accomplish this purpose.

"The most vicious thing about this racket is that the small fines now levied are considered by the promoters as merely a license to continue in business."

Buckley tried without success to introduce an amendment which specifically would have exempted churches and fraternal organizations from penalties under the act. He cited a supreme court decision which said that "the legislature has the right to say that a form of gambling . . . shall not be punished." It was handed down in the pari-mutual horse race betting case, Buckley said.

Catlett countered that the amendment was "a slap at churches who do not carry on these activities," and that even the others would not "cheer an amendment that recognizes their present practices as illegal."

Also, Catlett said, the amendment was improperly worded in that it would permit churches to carry on a numbers racket, which the bill was designed to stamp out.

"Public opinion will not stand for the prosecution of church or fraternal organizations," he added. "This amendment is unnecessary and should be defeated."

Rep. Roy Longnecker (R-Wood) backed Catlett with the assertion that there has been no demand from the churches for the exemption and that it would weaken a bill "designed to kill a racket that is illegal, immoral and that is undermining the youth of Ohio."

tionally famous New York chorus under the baton of Hugh Ross, one of the country's distinguished choral conductors, with the CBS Symphony accompanying.

Another of the prize-winning works chosen in Federation contest which will be presented during the "Festival of the Air" is "Joy," also a choral composition, by Franz Bornschein of Baltimore. It will be broadcast on a Mutual network by a Baltimore chorus under the baton of John Warren Erb, national choral chairman, Tuesday, May 4, from 10:15 to 10:30.

Other features of the festival will be broadcasts of the finalists in the Young Artists contest and the prize-winning compositions in the patriotic song contest.

Meanwhile, plans being made by the Mansfield Music Study club call for a choral concert Sunday afternoon, May 2, at 4 p. m. in the First Presbyterian church, hour concerts at John Simpson auditorium at 8 p. m. Monday through Thursday, and a concert of local bands in Central park Friday evening.

One of the highlights of the Mansfield program will be the group sings following the mid-week programs. The Music Study club has included these in the program so that in these times of stress the audience may "sing away their troubles."

ila Camacho farewell on April 21. Then Mr. Roosevelt stopped in Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Indiana and Kentucky.

Mr. Roosevelt said this trip had raised in his mind the question of what to do with the widespread and more or less permanent installations that have been erected during the war for the training of American youth.

He said the present training programs — for military service and industrial employment—were producing a vast improvement in the health and mental alertness of the nation and that the country did not want a net loss on the training facilities for which millions have been spent. Mr. Roosevelt was asked whether this indicated he was thinking in terms of continuing the training programs after the war.

He said it did, but he indicated he had no definite plan in mind; just the question of how the nation's wartime machinery to train youth should be used in peacetime.

The president also was impressed by the advances made by the armed forces and industry since his last trip. He said he returned to the White House with increased confidence about the showing the American forces and equipment will make in the forthcoming battle of Europe.

As in the case of his western inspection trip last fall, the president returned to the White House in a head-shaking mood over what he felt was the mild war spirit of Washington as compared with the country at large.

On April 27 Mr. Roosevelt made two stops in the middle west—one at Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis, where he reviewed 15,000 troops who had been in the army less than a month, and the other at Evansville, Ind., where he saw Republic Aviation turning out the P-47 Thunderbolt fighter planes.

The trip came to a climax at Fort Knox, Ky., where the president watched an armored force demonstration of battle firepower and where he made the first presidential visit to the bulging gold vaults of the United States depository.

although many more were known to have had similar damages.

Farmers began the task of repairing roofs and restoring farm buildings, many of which were damaged beyond salvaging, they said. With the destruction of many poultry and hog houses, no loss of livestock was reported.

The storm, the worst since the Lorain tornado in 1924 struck violently in separated sections leaving about 500 homeless. Power lines were disrupted and almost 2,000 homes damaged.

More than 100 persons were treated for injuries at Akron while Cleveland injured totalled 52. Two persons were injured near Bellevue and five in the Tiffin area.

Sections of Akron remained without power last night despite efforts of workmen, assisted by crews of neighboring cities, to make needed repairs. Several war plants were forced to shut down, and probably will remain closed for a week or 10 days.

Civilian defense volunteers, 1,500 of whom were mobilized in 40 minutes in Akron, received high praise for their work and were credited with preventing a larger number of injuries or deaths.

They assisted police in roping off dangerous areas where power lines were down and in guarding the areas until power had been turned off or the lines returned to a safe position.

Today their jobs were those of protecting the homes ripped open by the storm and assisting in the feeding and housing of the homeless.

Work in the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company and B. F. Goodrich company were halted because of wind and water damage. Cleveland war plants damaged included: the Newburgh works of the American Steel and Wire company, the Cleveland Pneumatic Tool Co., the Amalgamated Steel Co., the Republic Steel corporation and the Harold Manufacturing company.

nounced success of the campaign. He stated that the drive will continue through Saturday night as originally planned even though the original goal has been reached.

Brunner indicated that the townships and villages are over their quota of $500,000, Shelby over its goal of $1,100,000, and Mansfield past its quota of $5,000,000. He said that 6,163 persons, or one person in every 12 in the county, have subscribed to the drive.

Reports are still to come in from companies who are issuing agents, other bond issuing agents and postoffices over the county, Brunner said. These reports will not be complete until May 8.

Seven more of the women's organizations, making a total of 22 in all, have gone over their quota, Mrs. Louis Ott, chairman of the women's committee reported today. They are the Business and Professional Women's club with a quota of 1500 khaki trousers, $3,900; the Daughters of Union Veterans, 100 pistol belts, $620; Marine Corps League Auxiliary, fully equipped 10 marines at $155.94 each: Soroptimist club, 200 woolen coats, $3,100; Temple Emanuel Sisterhood, 500 mattresses, $3,255; Tourist club, 1,000 herringbone twill jackets, $2,160 and the Women's Guild of the First Presbyterian church, 200 overcoats, $3,100. Mrs. Ott requested other clubs to return their blue report forms to her or to the war bond office before Monday noon.

In Washington, the treasury said in the national drive, sales through last night totaled $18,486,000,000. He pointed out that commercial banks through tomorrow will buy $2,000,000,000 of treasury two per cent 1950-52 bonds to make the total subscription $15,486,000,000 without taking into consideration war bond purchases of the last days.

Bell said non-banking investors through last night had lent the government $10,548,000,000, against an original goal of $8,000,000,000. Commercial bank investments through last night totaled $2,938,000,000 and did not include any of the $2,000,000,000 of two per cent bonds which went on sale to them yesterday.

SOLDIERS GIVEN INJURY AWARDS

Driver Whose Car Crashed Military Line Settles for $60,000.

HACKENSACK, N. J.—(INS)—Nine soldiers who were run down and injured, while marching in military formation, by an automobile that had gone out of control were $60,000 richer today.

The soldiers settled damage claims totaling $250,000 against Charles E. Mordaunt, 36, driver of the car for the "sixty grand."

Daniel Slukan, 27, of Bentleyville, Pa., received $13,000 in the settlement; Marvin Zinner, 27, of Granville, Pa., $12,000 and James Rose, 19, of Clintwood, Va., $10,250. Names of the other six soldiers who settled their claims were not revealed as they are on active duty, John J. Breslin, Jr., attorney for the soldiers said.

SEE-SAW BATTLE RAGING ALONG TUNISIA FRONT

Germans Force Allies Back Near Medjez-El-Bab as Yanks Score Gains.

ern front was engaged in very active patrolling, it was said.

Allied fighter bombers ranged over the battle areas, destroying a number of vehicles and starting fires in target areas, the communique said. Five enemy planes were shot down during these sweeps.

Bombers of the strategic air force meanwhile encountered two enemy ships in the Sicilian Straits and set one of them afire. Seven enemy fighters were shot into the sea from a formation which attempted to prevent the Allied attack.

In the Gulf of Tunis one enemy ship was seen to blow up and three others caught fire under another Allied attack. Five enemy planes were shot down during this attack, the communique said.

From all these operations, two Allied planes were reported missing.

(The Algiers radio said this morning the Allies were threatening Mateur, a vital railway and highway junction. The Algiers radio has not always, however, been absolutely accurate in its announcements. Its broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

(The Italian communique asserted Axis counterattacks were successful in fighting that continued along the entire Tunisian front.

(Broadcast by the Rome radio and recorded by the Associated Press, the Italian war bulletin asserted an Allied ship was torpedoed in Philippeville bay, and said that seven Allied planes were shot down in raids on Naples, Messina, Syracuse and Lampedusa Island.)

Tunis would be virtually impossible to defend except on a house-to-house basis, and it is believed here the Germans might withdraw their forces into the mountains and lakes around Bizerte and on to the narrow peninsula east of Tunis for a final stand. Both offer natural defenses far better than the open plain west of Tunis.

French troops, after rolling forward 15 miles in three days, were reported at the outskirts of Pont du Fahs.

British armored forces thrusting southeastward from Goubellat were approaching Pont du Fahs from the northwest to increase the pressure on this important Axis base.

In the north, American troops under Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., captured three hills commanding the road to Mateur and Bizerte and were last reported threatening another, Green hill, by a flanking movement.

The British Eighth army in the south was slowed by perhaps the greatest concentration of artillery it has encountered in Africa. But Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery has brought up even greater artillery strength to batter incessantly at the Axis mountain positions.

RAF Bombers Rip Wilhelmshaven Base

LONDON — (U.P.) — Britain's biggest bombers struck in force at the northwestern Germany naval base of Wilhelmshaven last night while other planes—presumably Russian—raided East Prussia.

RAF planes returned to the attack today, crossing the channel this afternoon.

The Royal Air Force also engaged in "very large scale" mine-laying operations, particularly in the Baltic sea, last night, the air ministry said. Twenty-three British bombers were lost in all operations.

A German broadcast told of the raid on East Prussia, where the Red air force has been bombing German concentration points in an attempt to delay Axis preparations for a summer offensive. The broadcast said demolition and fire bombs were dropped.

U. S. Planes Quiet; Bigger Raids Hinted

LONDON — (AP) — The marked slackening in operations of the Eighth U. S. air force during a period when the RAF was raiding Europe nearly every day and night caused informed observers to speculate today on the possibility the Americans might be busy shaping a large-scale aerial campaign.

There have been two stretches of more than ten days each this month when the Flying Fortresses and Liberators made no raids. They have made only four for the month, against nine in March, the busiest month to date.

Official refusal to comment on this slackening suggested the cause might be the organization of a much bigger force.

It is known that one mass flight of four-engined bombers across the North Atlantic, recently completed without loss, was the largest yet to negotiate this route. The exact number of planes in the flight was not disclosed.

Stillwell, Chennault Confer In U. S.

(By United Press)

Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell and Maj. Gen. Claire J. Chennault, leaders of American ground and air forces in the China-Burma theater, were in Washington today for conferences which may foreshadow new and powerful blows at Japan.

They will confer today with Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff. The decisions reached at that and other such conferences must, of course, remain secret.

Chennault, commander of the 14th U. S. Air Force in China, contends that Japan can be knocked out of the war through saturation bombing and it's no secret that he has been demanding more planes.

A delegation of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's top advisers similarly visited Washington recently. They, too, sought a greater number of planes, and after their return to the southwest Pacific a chorus of warnings came from there that the Japanese were concentrating forces in the perimeter around Australia.

The arrival of Stilwell and Chennault coincided with renewed demands by Sen. A. B. Chandler (D., Ky.) that more attention be paid to the Pacific theater. Chandler, head of a military affairs subcommittee investigating the Pacific war situation, appealed to the people in a radio broadcast to demand of their representatives that the military become "aware of the danger" in the Pacific.

side Windermere barns to see "what the sentiment of the men was."

The union charged that Walter J. McCarter, general manager of the transit system, had failed "to really negotiate with us" over wages and working conditions. Although Michael F. Gravey, vice president of the international union, said at a meeting of the membership that a walkout would be illegal, Meaney called for a strike vote and received almost unanimous support from the 250 members present.

The union originally asked for a pay raise of 17 cents an hour for streetcar men and 14 cents an hour for bus drivers. McCarter told the union he would grant an increase of 2½ cents an hour on a fixed formula basis.

Clevelanders Get 'Strike Rations'

CLEVELAND — (INS) — The regional OPA said today it would issue an order allowing motorists to purchase emergency quantities of gasoline without ration stamps in view of Cleveland's street car and bus strike.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Birkett L. Williams, regional OPA director, today told city officials that the OPA would issue "additional gas rations to 'A' card holders as soon as Mayor Frank J. Lausche requests such action."

It was expected the mayor would request the extra rations in view of the Cleveland transit strike.

GHOST OF MY LOVE +

CHAPTER XXV

"Listen, baby," he murmured, "all I want out of this is cash. You had your chance to come with me. Now you've got to take the loss. You go tell St. Clair he needn't send you. I'll deal with him alone. You two are at the end of your rope and I know it, see."

His smile of triumph infuriated her anew. She looked cooly at him and said, "We aren't at the end of our rope. We're just beginning."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean, we have a brand new plan. We'll house those soldiers, Harry Boyle, and don't you think we won't! And we'll do it right away!"

He considered that, chewing a cigar. Was she bluffing? Or did she have a real threat now? He decided to probe.

"What do you mean?"

"I mean we can house those soldiers in Lightning itself! It's federal land. Part of a national forest now; turned back after it became a ghost town, with nobody to pay taxes. Only Uncle Pete Quincy has retained any individual rights there. And we have whole streets of houses standing. Already built!"

She had played a trump card, and both of them knew it. For a half minute or more Boyle just stared, thinking, getting angrier but getting fearful, too.

"That'll still take cash," he rasped, speculating now.

"We've got $22,000 in cash Harry Boyle! Locked in the hotel safe. And we've got a crew of about 150 men ready right now to go to work on the buildings. You're whipped, I tell you. And if you don't stay away from Bill St. Clair, you're likely to get whipped another way!"

Rosemary left her husband abruptly because she knew she had done all she could and she wanted to get back to the ghost town. But she felt a real satisfaction. She had fought back at Harry Boyle and for once whipped him.

Riding again in the motorcycle side car, she did have one quick surge of worry. She had implied more possibilities for the town of Lightning than she actually felt sure of! She had bluffed hard—one had to bluff hard, dealing with Harry Boyle. Knowing that money represented Power in his mind, she had even told him about having $22,000 in cash locked in the hotel vault. She hadn't explained that the money was merely in her custody.

"I ought to have stayed in Option, I'm afraid," she said now, to her driver.

"Why, Miss Lee?"

"Because I—I might have kept two men apart. Two men who despise each other."

The British lad looked worried. Of course he couldn't understand her. "I could rush back and do anything you say," he volunteered.

"No. No thanks." She was saddened now. Resigned. "I honestly think it has to happen sooner or later. I was just hoping."

They rolled on up the picturesque trail to Lightning in Purple Canyon, Rosemary straining for a glimpse of Bill's car which might indicate his safe return. She didn't see it. Only Uncle Pete greeted them, to say her flat tire was repaired. But she and the young Britisher went at once with Uncle Pete up the main street.

"First thing we have to do is arrange for water," she told them. "Uncle Pete, we're cleaning up your town. We'll have a lot of help in a few minutes. About 150 boys with mops and brooms and pails. But first we must go look at that spring."

The water source was half a mile up the canyon. It had gushed for obvious centuries, coming mysteriously from a rock crevasse, crystalline and pure. From 1898 to 1914 it had flowed in a sluice of rock and hardwood down the main street of this quaint town, branching off at each cross street like irrigation water in lateral canals.

"It broke out of the sluice here close to the spring in '14," Uncle Pete explained, "and dug itself another channel down amongst the rocks."

"We could put it back in the sluice in half an hour," the young Britisher said, "just by blocking up the new channel."

"And flow it right down the street again!" Rosemary exhulted.

Then and there they pitched in and did it with bare hands. Moved rocks, gravel, sticks and mud, verily working like beavers. In 20 minutes they saw the mirror-like stream sliding down the old sluice once more, dropping merrily over little waterfalls and cleansing out the decades of dust and trash. Down at the second lateral, which diverted some water to the Sunset Corral, leaves and sticks had completely blocked the main sluice. It was on a rock support more than head high here, so Rosemary slipped off shoes and socks and waded knee deep right down the stream.

"Miss Lee, I could have done that for you!" the Britisher called from below.

"Come on. It's fun!"

They waded the full length of the aqueduct then, clearing it of possible obstructions, making a few needed repairs with rocks and boards. Water had already splashed to the end of it at the bottom of Purple Canyon, and was forming a brook on the valley floor when the caravan of soldiers came into view.

Stirred now by the zest of hope and action, Rosemary met the detachment by running down the road barefooted, carrying sox and shoes.

"I say—lieutenant!"

That outcry came from Sergeant Wayne, riding as guide on the first truck. He stood up, smiling broadly with all the others, and then he saluted. Self consciously, Rosemary glanced at her toes then smiled back.

"I can't help it!" she answered him gaily. "I've been busy. This is no dress parade, sergeant. Get your men out and come on. We've got work to do!"

"Right, miss!"

It is doubtful if any detachment of soldiers ever accepted a task with more interest. They poured out of the trucks, awed by a ghost town and fascinated by a girl commander. She didn't give them time to stand around.

Four men helped her issue brooms. Sergeant Wayne and party then invaded buildings with these strange weapons. At Rosemary's direction they attacked first the public school, then the Bon Ton merchantile store and the Opera House. Ladders and scaffolding were improvised to sweep down ceilings and walls. Old relics began to turn up. Pocket knives. Spurs. Worn-out shoes. A loaded six shooter and a string of harness rings. Many odd bits of "life" from yesteryear that had accumulated dust and trash were here. This added zest, for each uncovered piece seemed a storied thing to these lads.

Next move was to re-do the buildings with mops and pails of soapy water. Uncle Pete Quincy was beside himself with joy watching the clean-up campaign. It was little short of a miracle that he saw accomplished here. In truth, 150 young men, bossed by a girl lieutenant with a dimpled chin and sparkling eyes, could readily accomplish miracles. They shouted and talked and sang as they worked and were scarcely conscious of working at all.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 29, 1943.

Time for Commander-In-Chief To Act

WHAT'S to be done in the case of John L. Lewis vs. the United States of America?

Is the national war effort to which millions of people are devoting earnest work and billions of dollars of their money to be set at naught by the open rebellion of this one man who wields dictatorial power over a half million miners?

Midnight tomorrow will be the zero hour for the threatened general coal mine strike, which, if carried through, would quickly paralyze industrial production of war equipment throughout the country.

Union miners will follow the orders of Lewis—not because a majority of them will prefer to do so but because they will fear to pass picket lines that will be established to enforce the strike order, if issued.

If there is a general strike the natural course of events would be for the army to take over—but soldiers are not coal miners and this move would solve nothing except possibly to prevent violence to miners who wished to work.

And the armed forces are badly needed just now to carry on the war against Hitler and the Japs, instead of being used to put down an internal rebellion.

The War Labor Board is an instrument of government set up to consider and act upon such disputes as are involved in this controversy. John L. Lewis has defied this board and flouted its authority.

Now—within twenty-four hours—is a time for drastic action and it remains for Franklin D. Roosevelt to take this action, not as president of the United States but as commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces in time of war.

No subversive act of an alien enemy could have a more disastrous effect on the war effort than the suspension of coal production contemplated by John L. Lewis, and if carrying through his threat of a general mine strike would not constitute treason then some modified definition of that word is required.

President Roosevelt has already indicated inclination to take a firm stand against any employers who evidence the slightest opposition to orders of the War Labor Board and it now becomes his obvious duty to show equal firmness in the case of John L. Lewis.

It may be assumed, for instance, that as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, Mr. Roosevelt could issue a command to Lewis which would say in effect: "Uninterrupted mining of coal is essential to production of war materials and to the welfare of our country. You will therefore immediately stop all action, by yourself or through others in your organization, looking toward a strike of mine workers now or at any time during the progress of war; and you will also order the immediate return to work of any miners who are now out on strike, subject to such action as may be taken by the War Labor Board on matters in dispute. In the event of your refusal to comply with this order, military authorities will be instructed to arrest you, and any others implicated in this work stoppage, and to bring you to trial on charges of committing subversive acts in time of war."

The War Labor Board realizes the futility of further efforts on its part to end the conflict and turns the matter over to President Roosevelt for such action as he may decide to take.

At Memphis, Tenn., last night, Col. Roane Waring, national commander of the American Legion, declared that the threatened shutdown of coal mines is "a stab in the back" while America is fighting a war—and that seems a fair view of the situation.

Some dictatorial power must be exercised during a period of war—BUT THE DICTATOR MUST NOT BE JOHN L. LEWIS!

Women's Views On Restrictions

WOMEN of America are overwhelmingly in favor of accepting restrictions that would affect their daily living habits in order to achieve the kind of peace we are fighting for, according to a poll conducted by the Woman's Home Companion on three important aspects of this question.

To the query, "Would you be willing to accept rationing and food restrictions after the war to help feed foreign nations?" 92 per cent of the women answered "Yes."

Asked "Which of the nations invaded by the Axis would you be most eager to help?" 35 per cent put Greece at the top of the list; Poland came second with 30 per cent; China a close third with 28 per cent, and Holland next with 25 per cent.

To the question, "Which of our allies do you feel most friendly towards?," many replied "We should feel friendly toward all of our allies," but the two most favored were Great Britain (49 per cent) and China (26 per cent).

This report, printed in the May issue of the Companion, is the sixth of that magazine's continuing survey covering women's opinions on wartime problems, and provides interesting light on the extent to which American women are thinking about the war and about the kind of peace that will come afterward.

Japan's Record of Infamy

THE UNITED STATES government knew Japan was going to attack this country but waited for the blow to fall instead of intercepting it and striking at Japan before its war machine got started. Apparently such a purely defensive policy was adopted so that there could be no possible question about war guilt. Then came the crime of Pearl Harbor, with the loss of many good men and ships. If that had been clearly foreseen, Washington would probably have struck the first blow and prevented much loss and grief.

The infamy of that deed has mushroomed into other infamies as the war proceeds. The most odious example is the barbarian procedure of executing captured American fighting men, against the universal rule among civilized nations and Japan's own treaty pledges to treat prisoners humanely.

This barbarism has aroused people more than anything else since Pearl Harbor. It is the last straw of outrage, but there is in it a tragic sort of benefit. Americans now really understand the Japanese machine and will not stop until they have abolished it.

Doesn't it give you a great kick when the little fellow who lately was playing around next door bobs up as a war hero?

A LITTLE PREMATURE, TO SAY THE LEAST

Small Armies Battling In Tunisia Have Great Strategic Importance

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

SOMEONE remarked to me that the 66,000 Germans and Italians, announced by Commander in Chief Eisenhower's headquarters as killed, wounded or captured in North Africa between Jan. 1 and April 15, don't make a very big total as compared with the eight million or so troops which Hitler still has under arms.

It might seem that way at first glance, but I'm afraid we can't estimate the position accurately by such a comparison. We mustn't forget that the strategical importance of this theater is so great that we would have seen a million men battling on each side, had circumstances permitted the employment of such huge armies there.

I take the liberty of repeating the vital fact that he who controls the Mediterranean wins the war. That's the stake for which the comparatively small armies are battling in Tunisia.

Actually the 66,000 loss of the Axis represents something like 25 per cent of the enemy effectives. We can't be exact about that, because some reinforcements have reached Rommel from Italy.

However if Hitler had lost a comparable total out of a million-man army in Russia it would run to about a quarter of a million—perhaps more because of the massing of larger forces. When you get down to cases, 66,000 first line troops are a very big loss for any army, no matter how large.

There's a limit to the number of men that can be used in a territory like North Africa. In the desert areas the water supply in itself forms a terrific problem. In fact supply and transport in all categories present unusual difficulties.

ONE OF the most important lessons of the African show is that the Allies are winning through a process of annihilation of the Axis forces and destruction of their equipment. By annihilation I mean putting the enemy completely out of action.

There could be no end to the show so long as General Montgomery and his British Eighth army were playing fox and hounds with Rommel about the desert. That's why the general strained every nerve to crowd the elusive Nazi into a corner and make him fight. Men who run away live to fight another day. The only beaten ones are the dead, badly wounded and captured.

We have annihilated a quarter of the Axis forces in Tunisia. We shall have achieved victory when we have every last German and Italian actually in our hands, or under the Tunisian sands. That's the only way battles can be won.

When we've finished with Africa we shall have to start applying that some cold-blooded, hard-as-nails truism to Herr Hitler on the continent.

The most powerful weapon he has left is his army. That army must be cornered and annihilated, and no man will be in position to guess the end of the war until Allied armies actually invade western Europe in force and corner the fuehrer, just as he has been cornered in Tunisia.

AUTHORITATIVE British circles recently estimated the German army at between 7,500,000 and 8,000,000. Presumably that would include not only fighting men but all the services.

It isn't as good as the fighting machine with which he started the war, because he is estimated to have lost at least 5,000,000, and they represented many of his best troops. Still the present army has great striking power, and some half million young Germans are coming of fighting age yearly.

While that army remains mobile and isn't compelled to stand and fight unless it wants to, Hitler may be able to continue the war indefinitely.

You will begin to get a line on his length of life the day that Anglo-American troops get ashore across the English channel and establish their bridgehead for the armies to follow.

Rationing and Rabies.

St. Louis is spending $1,000 a month for serum treatment of persons bitten by dogs. In March 212 were so treated and the chief of the St. Louis health department laboratory says the epidemic of rabies in dogs "presents the most serious situation in 23 years."

During the first three months this year 115 of many St. Louis dogs examined were rabid. Among them were both strays and household pets, and strays are being picked up and destroyed at the rate of 1,500 monthly.

St. Louis health authorities attribute the great increase in both stray dogs and rabies to food rationing. Many persons who spent money freely for dog food now hoard irreplaceable points for food for human consumption. The dogs are turned out to forage in garbage cans and dumps. Many strays have been bitten by the few rabid dogs to which the epidemic may be traced.

For their own protection and for the protection of neighborhood Victory gardens many dogs must submit to the leash for the duration.—Toledo Blade.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Lewis Was Made 'Boiling Mad' By Action of Northern Operators

WASHINGTON—Here is what happened behind the scenes last week in the coal mine negotiations which made John L. Lewis so boiling mad.

Charles O'Neill, representing the northern coal operators, flatly refused to make any counter-proposals to the United Mine Workers' demand for a $2 a day increase. Lewis had proposed that even if the coal operators couldn't meet those demands, they should offer something and then, by continued negotiations, it might be possible to find a basis for agreement.

"Offer us something, even if its only two cents a day increase," pleaded the big miner, "so we'll have something to negotiate on."

"No, we're standing pat," replied O'Neill, knowing he had President Roosevelt behind him, also wanting to get the dispute before the War Labor board. "We will agree to no wage increase."

"All right, will you offer counter-proposals to some of our other demands, not involving money?" Lewis persisted.

This met with another turndown from O'Neill, who had insisted almost from the start of conciliation talks in New York that the mine dispute be turned over to the War Labor board. And he knew that any counter-proposal by him would delay reference to the board.

"Well, if that's the way you feel about it, you know our position," exploded Lewis. "If we don't have a new contract when the 30-day extension expires on April 30, we won't be trespassing on your property."

Good Example.

SINCE publication of the recent Merry-Go-Round report regarding U. S. Treasury-Thomas J. Watson tax difficulties, I have been informed that Mr. Watson paid the treasury's additional tax assessments of around $350,000 in 1940, and that his present claim against the treasury for a refund will not be pressed.

Mr. Watson lodged this claim on advice of tax counsel only because of precedents set by the tax court which indicated the original tax returns were correct. He has informed me, however, that at a time like this, the last thing he would want to do is press a tax claim against his government, with which he may sometimes disagree, but which, his long public record shows, he will always defend and support.

In fairness to Mr. Watson I think these additional facts should be known, and that it might be a healthy thing for some other big taxpayers to know about and follow his example.

Pre-War Anti-Fascists.

THE war department has just received a protest from several forthright members of congress, who demand a 'complete investigation' of charges made in this column that the army is discriminating against officer candidates who served with Loyalist forces during the Spanish civil war.

The protest, signed by Representatives Clare Luce, Republican of Connecticut, John Coffee and Warren Magnuson of Washington, Chet Holifield of California, all Democrats, reads in part: "Reports which have been given to us, and which we have no reason to question reveal that not a single soldier in the foregoing group (Loyalist vets) who attended officer candidate schools has been granted his commission.

'Military experts regard the civil war in Spain as the opening round of the present tragic conflict in which we are now engaged. It is inconceivable that the United States army would now penalize any young man who voluntarily fought under the colors of the Spanish Loyalist flag against the Axis by refusing him the right to become an officer in the American army.

"Certainly," the protesting congressmen continue, "this country, in its greatest crisis, will not deny these young men another chance to put their strength and intelligence against those same Axis forces in other areas where our soldiers are now fighting under the American flag."

Dies Committee Charges.

PERSONAL grudges may creep into the question of whether certain government officials are really subversive—as branded by the Dies committee—if the Kerr committee isn't careful.

One of those branded "subversive" is William E. Dodd, jr., son of the former U. S. ambassador to Germany, whose father was a great friend of Woodrow Wilson and a famous historian at the University of Chicago. Young Dodd was a violent Nazi hater during his father's term as ambassador, was one of the reasons why the Hitler regime intimated to the state department that they wanted the elder Dodd recalled.

Later, young Dodd made the mistake of running for congress against powerful Representative Howard Smith, who has dominated northern Virginia for a quarter of a century. Smith has many friends in congress.

Now, young Dodd is branded as "subversive."

A bloc of congressmen headed by Georgia's Malcolm Tarver also bombarded members of the Kerr committee, appointed to investigate Dies' charges, regarding Dr. Frederick L. Schuman, political analyst of the Federal Communications Commission's Foreign Broadcast Intelligence service. He too had been branded as "subversive" by the Dies committee, and Representative Tarver demanded that Representative Kerr of North Carolina, head of the special committee, produce evidence to the contrary.

"There is no evidence," replied Kerr firmly. "Dr. Schuman is an outstanding authority on Soviet Russia and has written a great number of books on the subject, but this doesn't make him a subversive. We have examined his writings carefully. There's nothing in them to back up the Dies committee charges."

Other members also protested that the subcommittee report might provoke a fight with the Dies committee, but Kerr calmly observed that his job was not to whitewash the Dies committee.

ERNIE PYLE — Roving Reporter

Arab Youngsters Find Market for Eggs; Cigarets and Chewing Gum Serve As Money.

NORTHERN TUNISIA — (By Wireless) — One night at Kairouan three of us correspondents, finding the newly taken town filled with newly arrived British and American troops, just drove out of town into the country and camped for the night. We didn't put up a tent. We just slept in the open. The mosquitoes were fierce, and we draped netting over our heads. We were in a sort of big ditch right alongside an Arab graveyard. But neither the graves nor the mosquitoes bothered us that night, for we were tired and windburned, and before we knew it morning had come and a hot sun was beaming down into our squinting eyes.

ERNIE PYLE

And what should those sleepy eyes behold but two Arab boys standing right over our bedrolls, holding out eggs. It was practically like a New Yorker cartoon. For all I know they may have been standing there all night.

At any rate they had come to the right place, for we were definitely in the market for eggs. They wouldn't sell for money, so we dug into our larder box and got four eggs in trade for three little cellophane packets of hard candy. Then we started all over again and got four more eggs for a pack of cigarets.

We thought it a good trade, but found later that the trading ratio which the Germans had set up ahead of us was one cigaret for one egg. We Americans have to ruin everything, of course. But as one tough-looking soldier said:

"If I want to give $50 for an egg it's my business and my $50. And from all I've seen of Arabs an extra franc or two ain't gonna hurt them any."

ALL THIS transpired before we had got out of our bedrolls. But the youthful traders didn't leave. As we were putting on our pants each boy whisked a shoe-shining box from under his burnoose and went after our shoes. Then when we started a fire and were feeding it with sticks, one of the boys got down and blew on the flame to make it burn better. It was easy to see that we had acquired a couple of body servants.

The boys were herding about two dozen goats in some nearby clover. Now and then one of them would run over and chase the goats back nearer to our camp. We called one boy Mohammed and the other Abdullah, which seemed to tickle them. They were good-natured, happy boys of about 15.

One of them tried on my goggles. He seemed to imagine that he looked wonderful in them, and giggled and made poses. He didn't know the goggles were upside down. Also he didn't know that I was hoping fervently his eyes weren't as diseased as they looked.

The boys told us in French that the Germans had made them work at an airport, opening gas cans and doing general flunky work. They said the Germans paid them 20 francs a day, which is above the local scale, but it turned out they were German-printed francs, which of course are now absolutely worthless.

Our self-appointed helpers hunted sticks for us, poured water out of our big can and helped us wash our mess kits. They kept blowing in the fire, they cleaned up all the scraps around our bivouac, they lifted our heavy bedrolls into the jeep for us, and just as we were ready to leave they gave our shoes a final brushing.

We paid them with three cigarets and two sticks of gum each, and they were delighted.

When we were ready to go we shook hands all around, au-revoired, smiled and saluted. And then one of the boys asked apologetically if we could give them one more thing maybe. We asked what it was they wanted. You'd never guess. He wanted an empty tin can for his goats to chew on. We have him one.

HADJI' is the Arab word used in place of "Sir" before the name of anybody who has journeyed to Mecca and become holy. Seven journeys to Kairouan equal one to Mecca, so we correspondents now go around calling each other Hadji, since most of us have crossed the city line more than seven times.

Another word we've adopted is "djebel." It's Arabic for hill or mountain. On the maps every knob you see is Djebel This or Djebel That. So we call each other Djebel, and if you think that's silly, well, we have to have something to laugh at.

A Farmer's Diary

Apple Trees

LAST SATURDAY our shipment of apple trees was received from the village freight station. The rectangular box was eight feet long and weighed 400 pounds. I parked the car and trailer outside the large door of the B. & O. freight department and went in through the waiting room to the office where click of telegraph keys was almost constant.

My friend, the agent, was in a jovial mood. I signed the bill of lading and paid the freight, puzzled at the jolly way he had of doing the routine job as though to swing music. I ventured a meek inquiry.

'Something's happened, yes," he admitted then and grinned again. 'And something's going to happen that never did before—next week, if they'll let me off. I'm going to get married."

'Bravo'" I said.

"She's a country girl—I've seen too much of this business of livin' alone, right here in the village—it'll be a big event in my life . . . and I hope in hers . . ."

Driving home with the trees, I smiled, reconsidering the miracle of a new and happy home added to some quiet village street.

The trees had been packed for several days, but moisture was well retained within the damp, cool wood shavings tamped about the roots at each end. The oldest boy and I dug trenches within the unplowed line of plum trees and heeled each pack of ten, after separating them, into its own trench. When the work was finished the thin trunks for a distance of 40 feet, appeared like a new dense forest. The damp mingled fragrance of soil, moistened wood and growing roots clung to our hands and clothing.

Already 200 holes are dug between the peach rows and in a few more days, the work of planting will be finished. The four boys help to carry trees across the gravel road and up the steep bank at the other side. Even the three-year-old groans beneath his 'tote' of three tangled-rooted trees. The younger ones hold the top and bend it slightly to the southwest, while the brothers tamp the rich fresh soil the oldest throws into the hole. Far easier it would be for me to do the work, but then I think, even if a few trees die, they will have to learn.

With deep satisfaction I watch four husky little boys busy at planting trees. "Who lives for but one generation is already dead." Growing trees upon the slope—with growing boys to tend them—permit me an intense interest in the future.

U. S. Soldiers In Australia Wait Eagerly for Mail

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA —(INS)—Most important event in the life of a doughboy serving in Australia is the arrival of mail from home.

Earlier in the war, the arrival of mail was irregular and often long overdue, but now that V-mail is well established, letters are arriving in less than one third the average time taken by ordinary mails.

Thousands of the small envelopes now come into Australia each week. Doughboys say they much prefer shorter letters frequently—V-mail letters are limited to one page—to fuller budgets once every month or six weeks.

From where I sit....

by Joe Marsh

Charlie Jenkins writes me from down at camp:

"Dear Joe: Somethin' mighty swell happened to me on my last day's leave. I'm standin' on the corner, not knowin' anybody in town, when a stranger says 'hello, soldier—how'd you like a chicken dinner at home with me and the wife?'

"Well, it turns out they were the kind of folks who couldn't do enough to help out soldiers. They'd invited two other fellows and just as soon as we're introduced the lady brings us a glass of beer before dinner.

"We had a fine dinner, talked till ten ... Honest, Joe, I'll never forget their hospitality. Makes me feel good fighting for people like that."

Thought you might like to hear what kind o' fellows we got in this army of ours, and how they like to enjoy themselves when they get a chance to.

REV. C. H. BOWERS READS WEDNESDAY CEREMONY

Miss Mary Lucille Hyman Weds Sgt. Ray M. Wittmer In Evening Service; Miss Opal Bradshaw, Gerald Palmer Attend Couple.

THE QUIET and impressive wedding ceremony of Miss Mary Lucille Hyman to Sgt. Ray M. Wittmer was read Wednesday night at 8 p. m. in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Urban Wittmer, brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom, on the Mansfield-Galion road.

Rev. C. H. Bowers of the Ontario Community church read the nuptial service before an improvised altar, which was banked with fern, palms, and spring flowers. Arlie A. Hyman, father of the bride, gave her in marriage.

For her wedding, Miss Hyman chose a white street length gown, cut along princess lines. It was styled with a V neckline and bracelet length sleeves. Her accessories were in fuchsia Orchids and gardenias comprised her shoulder corsage.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Opal M. Bradshaw, a close friend, who wore a tailored aqua suit with luggage tan accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of pink roses. Gerald Palmer served as best man.

Mrs. Hyman was attired in a light blue ensemble with black accessories. Mrs. Wittmer wore a black frock with matching accessories. Both wore corsages of pink roses.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception for 40 close friends and relatives was held at the Wittmer home. Luncheon was served buffet style. A wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, and an arrangement of spring flowers centered the refreshment table.

When the newly married couple return from a short wedding trip the new Mrs. Wittmer will continue residing with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arlie A. Hyman, 116 East Luther place. The former Miss Hyman is a graduate of Springfield township high school. She is an employe of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, where Mr. Wittmer was employed before entering the armed forces.

Mr Wittmer is the son of Mr and Mrs. Ray M Wittmer, of Lexington. He is a graduate of Lexington high school. Mr. Wittmer is now stationed at Kirtland field in Albuquerque, N. M.

Friends Learn of Service Read In Pittsburg, Calif.

Friends are learning today of the marriage of Miss Virginia Jean Garrison to Pvt. Charles E Weaver, jr., which was solemnized April 10 in the camp chapel at Camp Stoneman, in Pittsburg, Calif.

Walter D. Owens, chaplain, read the ceremony at 2 p. m.

Miss Garrison wore a powder blue street length dress with matching accessories. Her corsage was of gardenias and bovardia. Attendants at the wedding were Pvt. Donald Kirk of Dayton and Pvt. Norman Funk of Springfield, friends of the bridegroom.

Immediately after the ceremony a dinner was given in honor of the newlyweds at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Lamont in Pittsburg.

Upon their return from a short wedding trip, the new Mrs Weaver will reside with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Garrison, 55 South Walnut street. The bridegroom expects to leave the U. S. in the near future.

Both Pvt. and Mrs. Weaver attended Mansfield Senior high school and were employed by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. Pvt Weaver is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E Weaver, 222 Poplar street.

CHAPTER A T OF P. E. O. HAS LUNCHEON MEETING

Mrs. Charles Fox Hostess at Meeting at Women's Club; Report on P. E. O. Convention Given By Delegate From Local Chapter.

MRS. CHARLES FOX was hostess Wednesday afternoon at a luncheon meeting for members of Chapter A T P. E. O., held at the Women's Club, when reports of the state convention held this week in Columbus were given. Mrs. Frank Wendt was the official delegate of that chapter.

The organization of P. E. O. is a group of 80,000 women who have banded together because of their interest in various educational, religious and social functions. The P. E. O. was founded Jan. 21, 1869 at Iowa Wesleyan college, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, as a social organization for women students. Gradually similar groups were started at various other colleges throughout the country and in later years, chapters were even started outside the schools, until now it has grown into an international sisterhood.

The main project of P. E. O. is its educational loan fund, which was established and is being preserved for the purpose of assisting young women in furthering their education.

In addition to its interest in education, the organization of P. E. O. is contributing to the Red Cross and Allied Agencies, the United Service Organizations, Civilian Defense, United Victory Fund, is buying war bonds, caring for evacuees and donating to the Blood Bank. Many of its members are now serving with the WAACS, WAVES and SPARS.

The sixteenth annual convention of P. E. O. was held in the Deshler-Wallick hotel. It was comprised of one delegate from each of its 45 local chapters.

Mrs. Earl Tussing, a past president of the Ohio State Chapter, presided at the Victory dinner, when Mrs. J. W. Walker was guest speaker. Mrs. Walker's topic was "Things That Abide." The Columbus Boy Choir presented a program of music at that session. Mrs. Jessie Burral Eubank of Chapter L., Cincinnati, spoke on "Living Creatively Today."

The present state officers include: President, Mrs. Ben R. Conner, Ada; first vice president, Mrs. A. J. Townsend, Toledo; second vice president, Mrs. F. R. Carrol, Dayton; recording secretary, Miss Olive Cummings, Bowling Green; organizer, Mrs. H. H. Maynard, Columbus; corresponding secretary, Mrs. L. A. Patterson, Akron and treasurer, Mrs. J. C. Samuel, Cleveland.

MISS MARION BIRCH, 591 Park avenue west, is assisting in the planning of Ohio Wesleyan university's traditional Monnett day, which annually honors the mothers of students and includes a May day pageant. The event is scheduled for the week-end of May 8. The program and festivities for the celebration are in charge of student committees.

* * * * *

Miss Barbie Hansberger, Virginia avenue, who has been visiting with Miss Jody Wilson at Stevens college, in Missouri, is enroute to Alexandria, La., where she will spend one or two weeks with her sister, Mrs. Joseph Castner, the former Miss Martha Hansberger.

* * * * *

MR. AND MRS. JAMES L'MUNYON left this morning to visit their son, Cadet James LeMunyon, who is stationed at the Naval Reserve Aviation Base at Norman, Okla.

* * * * *

Mrs. Mayme Kyler and her son, George, East Fourth street, have returned home after a week's visit with Corp. Henry Kyler. Miss Helen T. Brown, Park avenue west, has had as her guest for the past two weeks, Miss Etta Duggan of Pittsburgh.

* * * * *

MR. AND MRS. TODD PATTON, Arlington road, have as their guests Miss Ruth Patton, their daughter, who is employed in the navy department in Washington, and her friend, Miss Leah Kines, who is an employe of the U. S. treasury department.

* * *

Mrs. Lutie D. Nickel, 923 Kanawha Terrace, Saint Albans, W. Va., has returned to her home after spending the past two weeks with her mother, Mrs. Julius Patton, 199 South Main street. . . . Pvt. William J. Farst, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Farst, 31 Wolfe avenue, spent the past week-end with his parents. He was accompanied here by Mrs. Farst, who has spent the past two weeks with him in Atlantic City, N. J.

* * *

MRS. ROBERT ELLIS and son, Robert Lewis, from Wainsborough, Miss., are making their home with Mrs. Lucille Ellis Burgraf, Fifth avenue. Pvt. Robert Ellis, son of Mrs. Burgraf, is serving with the armed forces in North Africa. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wagler of Boyertown, Pa., are guests of his grandmother, Mrs. Lona Palmer, 200 Taylor road.

Devotions Given By Mrs. McClure At Division Meet

Mrs. Howard McClure assisted by Mrs. Frank Hartman entertained members of Division 2 of the United Presbyterian church at her home, 87 Stewart avenue, last night.

For devotions Mrs. McClure read the story "The Recall of Love" by Ralph Thomas. Mrs. Clarence Williams, vice president, conducted the business meeting at which time plans were made for the coming year. Mrs. Johns was welcomed as a new member. The rest of the evening was spent socially with luncheon being served by the hostess.

Mrs. Jack Anthony, Bartley avenue, will be hostess of the May 26 meeting with Mrs. Carl Boyd and Mrs. Fred Proctor as associates.

Conversational Members Have Luncheon Meet

Officers for the next two years were elected when the Conversational club met at the home of Mrs. Hal Kroegher, 520 Chevy Chase road, for a dessert luncheon Wednesday.

Mrs. Harold Burns is the new president. Other officers are Mrs. Merritt Giles, vice president, and Mrs. J. M. Clark, secretary-treasurer. Following the business meeting Mrs. S. J. Schuster reviewed the book "Mrs. Parkington" by Louis Bromfield.

The next meeting will be a picnic in the form of a box social on May 12 at the home of Mrs. Eugene Smart, 60 Sherman avenue. The proceeds from this will go to the Y. W. C. A. camp fund.

Review Will Be Given Friday by Mrs. Benninghoff

The review of "The Human Comedy" by William Saroyan, which will be given by Mrs. W. E. Benninghoff, Friday night at the First Presbyterian church, will be of interest to both men and women. The review is being sponsored by the First Congregational Women's association.

The novel, which is Saroyan's first, is a best seller. It is a fairly short novel, not only romantic and sentimental, but full of childhood's curiosity.

Mrs. Benninghoff, of Cleveland, has presented reviews for several years both afternoon and evenings to make it possible for men and women who are working during the day, to hear them at night.

Tickets for the review may be obtained from members of the Women's association or at the door of the church, Friday night.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

If Ruth Hayes could have seen the disgust in Jack's eyes and heard the venom in his words as he voiced his horror at having Katharine "breaths the same air," I do not think the "wilderness woman" would have been quite so complacent about her power over him as she was when she came to the Lansfield and taunted me with Katharine's inability to hold her husband.

But I had no time to waste on Jack's anger against Ruth Hayes, so I quickly answered his question.

"No, Jack," I said. "She has not seen Katharine, nor will she if Hal and my father and I can prevent it."

I had purposely dropped Hal Meredith's name as bait, and he promptly snapped at it.

"What has Meredith got to do with it?" he asked, his voice almost a snarl.

"What anyone has to do with it who is interested in Katharine's welfare," I said. "Some one has to look after her," I added, with an air of guilelessness.

Jack Consents.

"I suppose you mean by that crack that I am not looking after her," he said heavily.

"Well, are you?" I countered. "You will not even let her come here to see you"

He had been ranging up and down the room, but as I finished he dropped heavily into a chair.

"Well, you win!" he said "You always do. Give me time to have Gus get this hair and beard in shape, then you may bring her down any time you wish."

I was careful not to show the heady triumph I felt.

"It won't be when I wish," I told him, "but when Father thinks best. And I am so glad I can take that message back to Katharine. She has been eating her heart out about you."

"I'm not worth such devotion," he said bitterly.

"Probably not," I agreed blithely, wrinkling my nose at him, "but Katharine thinks you are So you'd better appraise yourself at her value, and act accordingly."

Before he could answer there came a resounding knock upon the door, and when he opened it Gus, almost breathless from haste, flung a message at me

I dashed past Jack and through the door to the telephone, and always my thoughts flew first to my children at the farmhouse. Almost out of breath, I snatched up the receiver.

"Father?" I said then gasped. "Has anything happened at the farm? Is everything all right?"

"Everything is all right," he said, then added sharply, "Pull yourself together. I have work for you."

More Work For Madge.

"I'm sorry," I said, obeying his injunction mentally and physically. "I'm all right now. What do you want me to do?"

"Get back to the hotel as soon as you can. But first, what success did you have on your mission?"

"The best," I told him, then, mindful that Jack was within hearing, I added "But I haven't time, have I, to tell you about it now?"

"Which means that you are not alone," my father said understandingly. "All right, that can wait. But get hold of Winters immediately, and have him hurry you up here as fast as is consistent with safety. Don't take any risks."

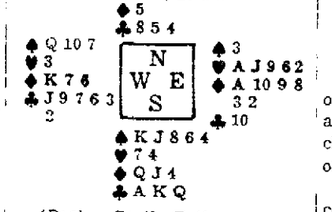
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

A BEAUTIFUL SIGNAL

THERE IS no more beautiful signal in the game than that by which a defender tells his partner where his side entry is, at the very same time he is leading a card which he hopes his partner can ruff. He does it by leading the lowest card he has in the suit, if he wants his partner to return the lower of the other two side suits, and by leading an unnecessarily high one if he desires a return of the higher-ranking side suit.

If ever a contract looked easy to make, after West led his heart 3 to the Q and A, this one did, until South realized, that the 3 was undoubtedly a singleton. East, of course, won it with his A and returned the 9, for west to ruff. The latter noticed the size of the heart his partner had led. If it had been



(Dealer: South Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass

the 2, he would have been signaling for a club return, but the 3 screamed out loud for a diamond, the higher in rank of the two side suits.

West therefore returned his diamond 6 to the A, and East forthwith sent out another heart. South sensed just one possible chance now to make his contract, and tried for it. He ruffed with the spade K, too high for West to over-ruff, and then pressed his luck. He had to hope that the spade Q was now singleton with either East or West, and led his spade 4 to the A in an effort to drop it. If this had worked, he then could have dropped the 10 with the J. But, as you can see it did not, so the Q took the setting trick for West.

Notice what would have happened if West, after ruffing the second heart, had returned a club instead of a diamond. South would have won, then would have dropped trumps, and so could not possibly have lost anything else except a diamond. East's signal was what put the blocks to him.

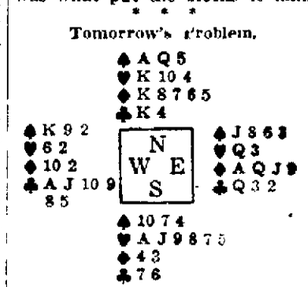
Tomorrow's problem.



What would be your method of play for 4-Hearts on this deal after West led the club A and then the 9?

Fighters See Movie on Board Battlecraft on Way To Tokyo Bombing.

good news to us, for it reduces the danger of detection by the enemy, but it also results in an increase of indoor pursuits—and the greatest of these is reading.

Tonight at dinner the conversation still turned about the raid, and particularly, the subject of where our task force is going to go, and what to do, after our planes have been launched on their way towards Tokyo.

Wistfully, every officer who speaks of the matter lays dreamy plans for engaging the Japanese home fleet, or blasting shore installations with our heavy guns.

There was some conjecture as to the time of day at which we will launch our planes. Some say late afternoon, as that would give us the cover of night in which to haul our ships away from the battle area at full speed; and also afford the bombers the advantage of darkness for their attack.

Others objected that if we launched our bomber squadrons in late afternoon, we would have to penetrate deep into Japanese coastal waters in broad daylight—while we were watching our launching point—and that, they suggested, would probably result in our being caught with our planes down, and the failure of our mission.

The wardroom radio was blaring a broadcast in Japanese. We are close enough to their coast now to pick up their programs on our standard wave-length band.

Imagination also paints a picture of Tokyo's war plants. In flames when our bombers dash overhead and dump their cargoes of incendiaries—for "scuttlebutt" has it that each is laden with the light fire-making bombs.

And conjecture went on into the night, but one fact remained undeniable: the weather is still greatly in our favor. The skies continue overcast, and the night is very black. On deck, one can barely make out, even with powerful glasses, the brother ships of our task force steaming along beside us.

Today was the day before the great event. At mid morning we were still many hundred miles from Tokyo, and our task force slowed in the choppy gray sea to have a parley. Under the overcast, lights blinked back and forth.

Up on our signal bridge I could see a blinker sending out its mute intelligence. Answers came from another cruiser, and the Hornet. Smaller craft cut in crazy patterns among their big brothers. Every ship was waiting—and talking.

Then, talking done, we began to shove on speed. Our ship plunged ahead of the pack, tossing clouds of spume over her bow. She rode so fast that she jerked and shivered each time she rode a high one and one of her propellers topped the waves.

And the afternoon grew darker. The other ships were following in close, but they were barely distinguishable in the heavy, driving mist. It was perfect weather for our raid—for no Japanese "eyes" could be flying on such a day as this.

Below decks, the sailors and marines—except those on watch—had turned into their tier bunks.

Out on deck, the only signs of human life were a few well bundled forms of sailormen passing in the dark. There was a stern, rolling sea and a shrieking wind.

Up at four o'clock this morning, in the hope of seeing all the excitement of the day. There was a possibility, we had decided, that the bombers might take off at dawn.

But they did not. When the sun came up, we were still 800 miles from Tokyo. The bombers, it was said, were to take off in the afternoon if everything went smoothly—or earlier if we should be intercepted by any Japanese war craft.

There was a fresh story in the wardroom. At 3 o'clock in the morning, we had detected a ship about 12 miles from us. When we turned off course, he turned in the same direction and followed until our superior speed dropped him astern—but whether he had seen us was problematical.

At about seven o'clock, as we were sitting down to breakfast, one of our scouting planes spotted are unidentified ship, but we quickly avoided it.

Later in the morning, came the electrifying news that the cruiser running just behind us had sighted a Japanese patrol ship nearby. Contact was unavoidable this time, and putting on a maximum of speed, the cruiser dropped out of formation and darted off to our port side.

We could see her streaking towards the horizon, where the Japanese ship was only a faint smudge of gray on the horizon. At last, we had met the enemy.

The cruiser was about four miles from us when she opened fire. But we could plainly see the brilliant flashes of her guns. She came alight with puffs of orange flame, like a gas stove touched off by a match, each time the guns fired.

Clouds of dirty smoke, with a yellowish hue, were rising over the cruiser. And near the horizon we could see tall narrow geysers, like a line of white columns, springing into existence.

Then the small popping sound of the gunfire came to us from the distance. Sound is slow to travel in such vast spaces.

Almost immediately, the bright flashes of a second salvo burst along the cruiser's deck. And then the bright little sunbursts of color came in rotation, rolling up and down the length of the ship.

But I could see one small dot of a patrol plane hovering over the shell splashes and presumably bombing the Jap. We were trying to exterminate the enemy before he radioed our position to his base. But it took a few minutes too long to sink him: And we feared that he had reported our position.

Now mechanics were warming up the motors of the big B-25s on the Hornet's deck—only a few minutes after the might of the cruiser had blasted the Jap to bits. We must get our bombers off post-haste, before enemy air or surface craft arrived on the spot.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

SACATON, Ariz.—This is one of several remote and almost secret places in our country in which we have attempted to sweep under the rug one of our most heartrending politico-military problems. On an enormous tract of the Arizona desert formerly farmed by a colony of Indians, the war relocation authority has planted 14,000 men, women and children of Japanese race. They include many who were born in the United States and also, therefore, under our laws and our sometimes painful but continuing concept of liberty and citizenship, are no less American than President Roosevelt, General MacArthur, or Lt. Com. Mickey Reeves.

Pegler

There are three types, the native American, who was "raised" American and never set foot in Japan, the native American who was sent back to Japan for education and indoctrination during youth, and those who were born in Japan. Almost all of this last group entered the United States before 1924. Among them all there are many, and nobody really knows how many, who hate the United States and would stab us in the back and serve as a greeting committee if the Japanese should bomb Seattle or San Francisco in sufficient force to cause a serious emergency. And among the native Americans who were "raised" American, there are some and again nobody knows how many, who would do their best to kill the anti-Americans. There are some among those who were "raised" Japanese and among the Japanese native immigrants of the older set who might defend this country. These two young groups are not trusted, however.

Yet, here they are, 14,000 of them in this vast desert, far from the two principal cities of Arizona and in the heart of a defensive military area where armies maneuver in training for desert warfare and hundreds of planes snarl across the clear skies, all jumbled together, the loyal and the treacherous. The loyalty of the loyal Americans is suffering a terrible trial for, outwardly, they are not distinguishable from the most brutal and implacable enemies, and they are all on a common footing.

This is not a New Deal problem nor the result of any failure of wilful social experiment. It is a dangerous and somewhat tragic development.

Up to this time it has been impossible to distinguish the loyal from the disloyal except in relatively few individual cases. For one reason, there has been not enough time nor a large enough staff. For another, it is impossible to know what is in the heart of a man or woman who may proclaim his or her devotion to the United States only to acquire greater freedom to betray us. In the sudden, frightening military crisis along the west coast, just after Pearl Harbor, it was imperative that the American government violate the rights of a great number of citizens, with race the only consideration. There was not time to judge the more than 100,000 individual cases each on its merits, so we borrowed from Hitler one of his meanest devices in sending them to internment.

For their own protection against uncontrollable civilians, many of them truly and bravely patriotic, who long have held to the dictum, recently voiced by a high military authority on the west coast, "A Jap's a Jap," we adopted Hitler's "protective custody." But we may take pride in the fact that the danger from which we thus protected these citizens was created by an external army and not artificially fomented by our own government as an excuse to round them up. We may be proud, too, that we have not tortured them as Hitler did. And we can understand now, that if we had not put them away, guarded in an inaccessible place, there surely would have been horrible reprisals on helpless Americans in their hands.

Raymond Clapper is now in London, en route to Sweden. His first column from there is expected within a few days.

The camp seems serene. Young Japs bathe in the irrigation canal on the edge of the reservation which is posted against intrusion by Lt. Gen. J. J. De Witt from his headquarters in San Francisco and guarded against industries and internal connections by a well-armed and alert unit of military police. One force of about 600 internees who show apparent loyalty to the United States are raising quantities of garden truck which, in the presence of a food shortage, nevertheless is barred from the free market of civilian trade on the ground of unfair competition.

The situation is dangerous, for much contraband has been intercepted ere now, knives, photographs and photographic materials, radio equipment and maps showing the way to and through Mexico, yet a recent order has forbidden further search of parcels addressed to the inmates by mail or express, the MP's may not even search automobiles entering the camp under permit for firearms. Moreover the area in which those who are granted temporary leave may circulate has been greatly enlarged, although, at present, few passes are being issued lest there be reprisals by American civilians in little southwestern towns for the murder of Jimmy Doolittle's men.

OPA WINNING FIGHT AGAINST BLACK MARKET

Reports 25 Convictions as It Abandons Honor System of Enforcement.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A high official reported today that the agency is winning its fight against the meat black market along with the disclosure that it also has had its fill of the so-called "honor system" of enforcing price and rationing programs.

Thomas I. Emerson, chief enforcement officer, said that OPA conducted 10,752 investigations of black market activities in meat between Jan. 1, when the campaign against such illegal operations began, and April 1. So far, 25 convictions have been obtained calling for fines, imprisonment, or both.

At the same time, the OPA executive reported that the "honor system" had been abandoned after the unfortunate experience with it when eastern motorists were placed on their honor last March to refrain from pleasure driving in order to conserve gasoline.

Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown expressed the hope at that time that the same system of compliance could be used for other OPA programs. Subsequently, however, the public roads administration made public statistics showing that the experiment had been a dismal failure.

"No more honor systems are under consideration but that doesn't mean that everyone has to be put in jail," Emerson said.

He explained that the OPA planned to rely heavily upon price panels which will be attached to local rationing boards for the purpose of interpreting OPA's various regulations to the public and stressing the need for co-operation in the wartime programs. Brown announced the price panel program several weeks ago.

According to Emerson, OPA has started action on 822 injunctions against 1,003 defendants in the meat black market and begun criminal action through the department of justice in 182 cases involving 319 defendants. The drive was climaxed by the recent indictments in New Jersey.

"We are winning the battle against the black market, but we have to keep constantly on guard," Emerson asserted. "We do not intend to relax our vigilance for a moment and black market operators cannot expect any mercy from us."

OPA's enforcement effort, he said, involves some 2,639 investigators and 382 attorneys in eight regional and 100 district offices, plus 65 attorneys assigned to Washington headquarters.

WMC MOVES TO BROADEN JOB TRANSFER BAN

Agreement Affecting Entire Nation Expected In 48 Hours.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The war manpower commission was moving quickly today both to strengthen and to ease its restrictions on wage increases in job transfers.

This will be done through a national employment stabilization agreement which will bring under control the job transfers of every man and woman in an essential activity and permit unrestricted movement of only those in non-essential activities.

WMC officials said last night they expected the agreement would be in operation "within 48 hours." All that remains is affixation of the signatures of the representatives of management and labor as constituted in the nine-man national WMC management-labor policy committee.

All regional directors meet here today for instructions on the application of the agreement which passed its final hurdle when the full commission approved it at its regular meeting yesterday. It previously had been approved by the policy committee.

The agreement was needed in order to correct a major discrepancy in the regulations on jobs transfers issued April 17 by War Manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt. Under them, only workers in the 67 areas or regions with local employment stabilization agreements could obtain higher wages in a job transfer made in the better interest of the war effort. The new agreement will permit such transfers at higher wages in all localities.

It also will give greater control to WMC over all job transfers by requiring a worker to have the approval of his employer or the WMC in moving from one essential job to another.

The agreement will not supersede the 67 plans in effect, but will apply only to the areas not covered by such plans.

FUEL RATIONS TO BE RAISED

Owners of Small Homes To Get Bigger Allotments of Oil In June.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Upward of 500,000 householders in 33 fuel oil rationed states today were assured of warmer homes next winter under OPA's streamlined rationing program which provides for distribution of coupons through the mails in June.

In announcing details of the new program, Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown disclosed that increased rations will be allotted to the occupants of "small homes" and "very large homes."

The increases will be granted automatically by local rationing boards, unless the applicants specifically asks for less oil. OPA officials estimated that the two eligible categories comprise about 20 per cent of the homes on the ration roll.

Need for larger rations for many small homes, Brown said, was demonstrated by a special OPA analysis of more than 30,000 individual rations. The floor-area method of figuring rations resulted in a disproportionately large cut on the average small house, he said.

Although the program continues "essential features" of the rationing system used during the past winter, Brown announced these innovations:

1. Use of approximately one-third of next season's coupons will be permitted beginning July 1, so tanks may be filled in the summer.

2. Users of fuel oil in 17 eastern states, the District of Columbia and 13 mid-western states will receive application forms through the mail late in May or early June. These must be filled out and returned at once so that boards can mail coupons during June.

Up and Down THE STREET

War-time priorities on steel for civilian use have created an annoying problem for city officials who must use the filing room at the city building. The city recently purchased new filing cabinets at a cost of nearly $400, and when they arrived they were mostly cardboard instead of steel. Filling them with cards makes the sides bulge so that the drawers won't open without a lot of tugging and causes the cabinets to sag out of shape. The price was reduced $73 because of the cheaper material, but city officials are wondering now if they shouldn't do something about correcting the problem before paying for the cabinets.

DISPUTE UP TO TWO LEADERS

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The synthetic rubber vs. high octane gasoline priorities controversy appeared today to have resolved itself into a clash of personalities between Rubber Director William M. Jeffers and Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson.

It remains for Jeffers and Patterson to convince members of the senate Truman committee otherwise when they testify next week.

Jeffers is scheduled to appear Monday to give his answer to Patterson's charges that high priorities for the rubber program have created a shortage of 100-octane gasoline for army planes. Patterson is scheduled to appear Tuesday.

The groundwork has been laid by the appearance of War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson, who granted the priorities, Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes, who is responsible for adequate production of 100-octane gasoline, and Undersecretary of Navy James V. Forrestal, whose combat escort vessels must compete with both rubber and gasoline for critical component parts.

Nelson testified that he granted the rubber program only such priorities as Jeffers said were necessary to carry out recommendations of the Baruch report on rubber.

Both Ickes and Forrestal protested that the rubber priorities had interfered with their programs. But Ickes proudly asserted he was meeting the army's previously-stated gasoline requirements despite such obstacles. Forrestal testified the navy gets its aviation gasoline from the same pool as the army and hasn't so far felt any shortage.

IN HOLLYWOOD-- By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—One of the really good things about the motion picture industry is its devotion to the lives of great men who have gone before us. Just recall how painlessly you learned about Emile Zola, for instance.

Now you're going to learn about Reginald Joseph Mitchell, who as history goes is pretty obscure, but who as the inventor of the famous Spitfire warplane deserves a great deal of attention.

Coons

The man who portrays Mitchell on the screen is Leslie Howard, a choice reportedly pleasing to the widow of the British aircraft engineer, since "Reg" in his lifetime was shy and retiring, the sort of demeanor you expert from Howard.

Mitchell died June 12, 1937, at the age of 42, and the New York Times said in his obituary: "He gave his name to no company or aircraft, yet he designed a military airplane believed to be the fastest in the world and now being produced in great quantities for the Royal Air Force. Its performance is a well-kept secret."

Mitchell's story, traced in the film "Spitfire," begins at the turn of the century in the British town of Stoke-on-Trent. The son of a printer, he showed such an early interest in science and mechanics that his first job of importance was in a locomotive shop.

During World war I Mitchell worked on airplane engines at the Vickers Supermarine factory, and made such progress that in 1920 he was chief engineer and designer for the company. In the post-war period, Mitchell designed a radical monoplane which incorporated steel tubing and a high bullet-like fuselage.

That September a world seaplane record of 226 miles per hour was established with the plane. Although it crashed later in the United States because of a wing flutter, Mitchel already was at work on an all-metal successor. It was in this machine in which Flight Lieutenant d'Arcy Grieg reached a speed of 319 miles an hour, in 1927.

The first actual Spitfire was flown in 1936. Seven years ago, mind you, yet it had a speed of 346. Mitchell calmly accepted the news that the Germans had produced a Messerschmitt which could do 379 miles an hour, because he knew he had the right basic idea and that developments could come later. The tragedy of his life was that he did not live to see an RAF pilot step into one of today's Spitfires and fly away to challenge a Messerschmitt.

Mitchell became ill from over-work and was told he was living on borrowed time. He refused to rest, and when he did go to a Vienna clinic it was too late.

Ray Mack Rated 1-A By Mansfield Draft Appeals Board

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Joltin' Joe Whistler, the Willard grid great who starred at fullback on one of the best freshman teams in Ohio State history last fall, won't get a chance to play on what probably will be the nation's standout eleven next autumn.

He graduates from Great Lakes naval training station May 12.

Joe expects to get a nine-day furlough after his graduation, and then will take training to become a motor machinist's mate.

Since he can't play with Ohio State next fall, I'd like to have seen what Joe could do on the Great Lakes team. But it seems there's a war going on for service teams, as well as colleges.

Coach Bup Rearick, the hero of Canton off his McKinley grid victory over Massillon, and his state finalist bucketball team, isn't feeling so heroic these days and all because his heroes are gone.

When Bup has nothing else to do he sits around and dreams of the football line he'd have next fall, if it weren't for the war.

Dale Haverstock and Tony Rotunno would be ends, Homer Jordan and Frank Bell tackles, Bob Hall and Bob Tucci guards, and Herman Lombardi center.

Jordan and Bell already are in service, Lombardi has dropped out of school preparatory to enlistment, and the others seem headed for service this summer, with the exception of Tucci.

Mansfield Tyger cagers looking over the eligibility of the Canton team before their game late last winter, were shocked at the "old age" of their opponents. "All of those guys are draft age," the Tygers gasped, "what keeps them out of the army?"

There was one Bulldog cager who wasn't draft age, and he's the guy who beat out Tygers in that 54-50 bucket parade—big Ernie Parks.

And fans who saw big Ernie run last Saturday out at Stadium field agreed: "No wonder we couldn't catch that guy in football last fall."

And others, moaning along with former Buckeye Quarterback Johnny Hallabrin the sad football prospects at Ohio State next fall, decided "Ohio State might not do so bad if Ernie Parks goes there."

Flag Race Hinges on Draft Call

Cleveland Takes Over Second Place In Loop.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(AP Sports Writer)

THE American League's pennant race seems to be in the hands of the draft authorities today.

It has been right within their reach all along, of course and all the pennant predictions this spring were hedged with "ifs" and "buts" covering the possibility of the loss of key players by contending clubs.

However, the matter is down to cases now. Today shortstop George Stirnweiss of the New York Yankees undergoes an induction examination at Hartford, Conn., and last night it was disclosed that an appeals board at Mansfield, O., has retained second baseman Ray Mack of the Cleveland Indians in Class 1-A.

Mack, married on Oct 16, 1940, the date of the first draft registration, is the father of an 18-months old daughter and expects another child this summer. The Indians had expected him to be deferred by the selective service ruling that fathers of children born before last Sept. 15 would not be called until the supply of single and childless married men had been exhausted.

The appeals board said its decision was not unanimous, leaving Mack the right to take his case to the presidential board.

Stirnweiss, a bridegroom of about six weeks, is understood to have stomach ulcers and Yankee spokesmen have said he was rejected for this reason when he tried to become a naval aviation cadet last winter.

The pace setting Yankees have played five games winning four, and Stirnweiss has hit safely in every contest for a batting average of .455 to show that even though he is a 24-year-old rookie he is as valuable to the club as any veteran. Yesterday the Yankees shut out the Boston Red Sox, 5-0, with Ernie Bonham pitching six-hit ball. Stirnweiss made three of New York's eight hits, scored one run and batted in another.

Cleveland took over undisputed possession of second place as Lefty Al Smith shut out the Chicago White Sox, 2-0. Smith gave nine hits to the six his teammates obtained off Bill Dietrich, but the Indians bunched three singles and two stolen bases in the first inning to get their runs.

The Washington Senators who moved into third place as Ewald Pyle pitched them to a 3-0 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics, also suffered a draft blow when manager Gerry Priddy was summoned to New York for his physical examination.

The Detroit Tigers, making their belated opening at home before 17,943 fans, stopped the St Louis Browns, 4-2, with Tommy Bridges and John Gorsica combining to hold the Browns to five hits. Bridges contributed two timely singles to his own victory.

The world champion St Louis Cardinals lost their contest with the Chicago Cubs 4-0 on four errors and the first setback put a damper on Harlem Lafayette the Bums Puerto Rican right hander.

There were nine errors in the Brooklyn Dodgers affair with the Philadelphia Phillies and Brooklyns National league leaders finally obtained a 7-5 decision with a tenth inning run in the tenth. They did it before 4,470 fans at Shibe park.

XAVIER AND OHIO U. PLAY TWO GRID TILTS

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Athletic director Clem Crowe of Xavier university announced today that Xavier and Ohio university have agreed on a home-and-home football series for this fall.

Crowe said Xavier would play the Bobcats in Athens Oct. 9, with the second game scheduled here on Thanksgiving day, Nov. 25.

Boudreau Sees Hits Coming

Blames Training In North For Slow Start.

By DAVE HOFF

CHICAGO—(AP)—Manager Lou Boudreau isn't one to fret over the Cleveland Indians' lack of base hits early in the season. The Tribe has won five of its first seven games and is in second place in the American league, bearing out the youthful pilot's prediction that his club will be the one to beat.

* * *

"Our hitting will come along," he declared earnestly today. "This is the disadvantage of training in the north. Why, we only had a couple of weeks of spasmodic playing, and over the same period in the south we'd have been playing every day."

What cheers Boudreau are the five good pitching jobs by his "big six" mound corps, only two of whose members have not yet run up their first victories.

Two of those wins were provided by Jim Bagby, son of the old-time Cleveland hurling star. The young sarge beat Detroit in the opener on three hits, 1 to 0, driving home the only run of the game with a fly ball in the ninth. He beat Detroit again, 4 to 1, tripling home two big runs. Mel Harder, Vern Kennedy and Al Smith have been the other winners.

"Bagby, Harder, Kennedy, Smith, Chubby Dean and Al Milnar—they, I hope, will make up our big six pitching staff," Boudreau said. "And we've got Ray Poat and Paul Calvert and Earl Center, and some other pitchers who may go great for us."

Boudreau laughs at reports he is slowing up—at the age of 25. "Maybe it's because I keep my ankles wrapped in tape all the time" he grinned. "But I've always had them wrapped, even when I was playing at Illinois."

VANDY STARTS

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—Johnny Vander Meer, trying for his second win in three starts, is the Cincinnati pitcher today as the Reds meet Pittsburgh in the final of their three-game series. Hank Gornicki is the opposition.

Elmer Riddle and Joe Beggs pulled the Reds out of their three-game losing streak yesterday with a 2-1 job on the Pirates. Beggs finished the ninth when Elmer loaded the bases with two outs.

The Reds scored all their runs in the fourth. Eddie Miller opened with a single but was forced by Max Marshall. Frank McCormick and Gee Walker singled. After an infield play on which Marshall scored, Ray Mueller got a two-run single.

SHORTS AND SHELLS.

Word from the south is that Georgia is the only southeastern conference school that brought in any third quarter freshman football players this spring . . . "The other," says our informant, "are not issuing scholarships at present. They're just trying to keep the ones they have." . . . With the addition of Ernie Lombardi, the Giants have a 107-year-old catching staff. Schnozz is 35, Gus Mancuso 38 and Ray Berres 37.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Jim Schlemmer, Akron (O.) Beacon-Journal: "All that is needed now is for Joseph Eastman, the big ODT man, to declare Count Fleet the winner of the Kentucky Derby by official proclamation. . . . And be done with it without all the fuss and bother of staging the affair."

FLYIN' RYAN

The Giants were a-tryin',
When they traded Connie Ryan,
To put a little punch in their attack.
But Connie, quite ungrateful,
In an inning that was fateful,
Stepped out and hit the ball a homerun whack.
And Mel Ott, feeling very blue,
Asked: "Now what else Connie do?"

BOSTON RED SOX TRY MORNING GAME

BOSTON—(INS)—For the benefit of war workers, the Red Sox will experiment with a morning game against Cleveland May 27, it was announced today.

If the attendance results are encouraging additional forenoon games will be scheduled during the season.

Fleet Just Like Yankees

Baseball Bug Voices Answer on Derby.

By SID FEDER

LOUISVILLE—(AP)—The baseball bug busted into the conversation on racing in general and the derby in particular like a dill pickle popping out of the middle of a chocolate fudge sundae.

Just what a baseball bug was doing in the middle of all the jam-packed hotel lobby and street-corner horse hysteria in Derbyville today will have to remain a major mystery, but you had to admit he had something more than just a vague idea.

* * *

"That Count Fleet," he reasoned, "is just like the Yankees used to be in their batting practices before a world series. The Count's a real fine horse, and everybody else in the race knows it. The Yankees were murderers' row in those days, a few years back, and every team they tangled with knew it.

"But when they took their cuts during batting practice, they always made sure the fellows on the other side were watching them. Then they put on their show. Every guy would step up and belt that apple out of the lot. By the time they finished, the other guys were shuddering.

"Now, I'm not saying the other horses in the Kentucky derby Saturday are scared to death of the Count. But when he took that workout day before yesterday over the full mile and a quarter, he took it right out there between races, where everybody could see him. I'd be willing to bet the rest of the trainers and owners weren't feeling any better at what they saw. And how about that morning blowout he took on the track last week? It was advertised all over the place. Did you see how just about every other trainer came over to the grandstand to watch him? They weren't any too happy."

The guy just about hit the bulls-eye. There are going to be nine or ten other horses in the $75,000 scramble Saturday, but only one of them has ever beaten the Count in the 17 starts of his career.

* * *

This was Gold Shower last summer, and that was regarded as an accident. And when the Count turned in his 2:07 workout, there wasn't one of them who didn't admit the fleet was "in," or well on the way, anyway.

Ortiz Retains His Bantamweight Title

FORT WORTH, Texas—(AP)—Manuel Ortiz still is the world's bantamweight champ and you won't hear even a feeble protest from Lupe Cordoza.

* * *

Lupe, unconvinced when he lost because of a badly cut eye the first time they met, was knocked out by Ortiz in one minute and seven seconds of the sixth round last night. Each weighed 118.

* * *

The El Centro, Calif., Mexican clumbed on Cordoza from the opening bell. Cordoza took the count on the hands and knees, too weak even to shake his head.

The fight drew a crowd of 3,000.

Decision Made Over Week Ago Revealed

Split Vote By 5-Member Board Leaves Presidential Appeal Right.

RULING by the Mansfield district draft board of appeals today definitely placed Ray Mack, second baseman of the Cleveland Indians, in class 1-A in the draft, limiting Mack's days of service to the pennant aspiring Tribe.

C. F. Routzahn, chairman of the Mansfield district appeals board, disclosed today that the decision of the board in upholding Mack's recent reclassification by his Cleveland draft board in 1-A was made over a week ago.

* * *

Routzahn explained that the local appeals board was not permitted to announce its decision at the time, but under draft regulations had to certify the ruling to the state board, which in turn notified Mack's Cleveland board.

Mack had appealed his reclassification on the grounds that he was the father of an 18-month-old daughter, and that another addition to the Mack family is expected this summer.

The former star fullback of Case School of Applied Science was married Oct. 16, 1940, the date of registration for the first draft.

Decision of the five-member appeals board was by a split vote, leaving open the right of presidential appeal to the Indian second baseman. However, it is doubtful if Mack, in his position in the public eye as a big league ball player, will carry his case to President Roosevelt.

* * *

The Mansfield board had Mack's case for three weeks before bringing it to a vote, Routzahn disclosed today. "We gave it the same thorough study and consideration we give to every other case," he declared.

* * *

However, Routzahn said that a draft directive issued since the action by the Mansfield board automatically placed fathers of children conceived before Pearl Harbor into class 1-A-H which gives them consideration for temporary deferment in their draft boards until fathers of more recent children are taken.

This will be a matter for Mack's own draft board to rule upon.

Loss of Mack's defensive skill at second base would be a hard blow to the Cleveland Indians who today are in second place in the American league race.

However, the Indians hardly will miss his bat, as Mack has been a weak hitter ever since breaking into the big leagues, although he was a slugger in minor league ball.
